Dear Friends,

Welcome to the Magnolia State!

Elee and I welcome you to enjoy the hospitality, culture, and exceptional cuisine that make Mississippi a great place to live, work and play.

This Official Mississippi Tour Guide is your map to the very best of Mississippi’s accommodations, attractions, and experiences. We encourage you to explore our historic landmarks, diverse communities, and legendary hospitality as you travel throughout our beautiful home state.

While you’re here, experience Mississippi history up close. The Museum of Mississippi History and the Mississippi Civil Rights Museum in Jackson offer an in-depth look into our state’s storied past. The Delta Blues Museum in Clarksdale and the GRAMMY Museum® Mississippi in Cleveland, both situated in the heart of the Delta, and the Arts and Entertainment Experience in Meridian tell the stories of our state’s contributions to the arts.

Mississippi is proud of our legacy as the “Birthplace of the Blues” and the musical royalty who were born and found their sound here. From the B.B. King Museum in Indianola to the birthplace of the “King of Rock ‘n’ Roll” Elvis Presley in Tupelo, you can experience the places and people that were pivotal in the lives of these legends and more by wandering the Mississippi Blues Trail and Country Music Trail – an extensive network of markers that celebrate and honor those Mississippi natives who helped shape music as we know it today.

If you’re looking to enjoy the great outdoors, Mississippi is a paradise of parks, natural waterways, wildlife reserves, and recreational activities. The magnificence of the Mighty Mississippi is an unparalleled outdoors experience, open to explorers of all ages. Hikers and bikers will find trails for all levels of experience. Nature enthusiasts have a wealth of locations to explore and encounter the rich biodiversity of our state. The Mississippi Gulf Coast offers exciting saltwater fishing and boating adventures, and our many lakes and rivers offer friendly or competitive freshwater fishing opportunities.

Mississippi’s celebrated cuisine is a nod to the unique cultures found in each region of our state. Enjoy some of the freshest catfish in the world in the Mississippi Delta and seafood like shrimp, crab and oysters harvested from the Gulf of Mexico along the Mississippi Gulf Coast. Whatever your taste, Mississippi’s world-class chefs are on hand to ensure you leave fulfilled and craving seconds.

From our family to yours, and on behalf of all Mississippians from across our great state, welcome to “The Hospitality State.” We’re glad you’re here.

Sincerely,

Governor Tate Reeves

ABOUT THE COVER

Asya Branch made history not once but twice, but that's just part of her powerful story that began in Mississippi. Branch became the first Black woman to be crowned Miss Mississippi, and just a year later she went on to be crowned the first Miss USA 2020, making her the first contestant from the Magnolia State to win the coveted crown. But amidst the glitz and glamour, her heart remained anchored not only to Mississippi, but also to a social justice initiative for children with incarcerated parents. Learn about her love for Southern hospitality, her journey to Miss USA and her meaningful initiative on page 10.

Asya Branch poses on the porch of the Elvis Presley Birthplace in Tupelo, Mississippi, an attraction that she says is a "Magnolia State must."

ASYA BRANCH'S HISTORY-MAKING ROLE AS MISS USA 2020 IS ONLY PART OF HER POWERFUL STORY THAT STARTED IN MISSISSIPPI

Asya Branch, Miss USA 2020 winner, wearing the "Power of Positivity" Crown, presented by Mouawad, the official crown sponsor of the 2020 Miss USA Competition at the Miss USA Competition, on November 7, 2020 at Graceland in Memphis Tennessee.

Asya Branch still gets goosebumps when she thinks about that moment. There she was on the stage, surrounded by the other members of a very elite club: the top five contestants in the Miss USA pageant. One by one, their states were called. Fourth runner-up, third runner-up, second runner-up. Suddenly it was just Branch and the contestant from Idaho.

"TAKE A DEEP BREATH, LADIES. THIS IS FOR REAL," said host Allie LaForce. "MISS USA 2020 IS ... MISSISSIPPI!"

And suddenly, it was all a blur. There was clapping, there were cameras, there was music, there were flowers, and there was crying as her predecessor placed the diamond-studded crown on Branch's head. When Branch finally caught her breath, it hit her all at once what she had accomplished. In an instant, she had made history as the first Miss Mississippi USA to win the Miss USA crown, just a year after becoming the first Black winner of the state pageant.

"WHEN YOU HAVE A DREAM IN YOUR HEART FOR SO LONG AND IT FINALLY COMES TO FRUITION, IT ALMOST SEEMS UNBELIEVABLE," she says. "It was very surreal. It was a feeling of shock and excitement, and realizing I was accomplishing my dreams and my goals."

Since her reign as Miss USA began in November 2020, Branch—whose first name is pronounced "Asia"—has seen her life change dramatically. Whisked away from the Magnolia State to a new home base in New York City, she embarked on a year of duties ranging from public appearances to speaking engagements—albeit mainly virtual appearances and digital engagements during the pandemic restrictions of late 2020 and early 2021. But even with her newfound hectic schedule, Branch's heart remained anchored to her hometown of Booneville, MS, in the Hills region, and to the family and friends who supported every step of her incredible journey.

Branch's route to the Miss USA title actually began in Michigan, not Mississippi, but her family moved to Booneville the summer before she started kindergarten. They readily traded Midwestern urban life for a more peaceful and pastoral existence, with wide open spaces, trees and plenty of room for pets of all sorts—from dogs and rabbits to horses and chickens. "I think it gave us the life we were always looking for," she says. "I loved the warmth, the sunshine—and what really got me was the Southern hospitality, how everyone was just so nice and so welcoming. It really made it feel like home right away."

and so the child shouldn't be treated differently, because that was one of the hardest things I had to deal with."

Becoming the first African American woman to win the Miss Mississippi USA crown gave Branch a sense of pride that would carry her through to the country's biggest pageant stage. "I'M SO, SO GRATEFUL TO HAVE HAD THE OPPORTUNITY TO BE THAT EXAMPLE FOR THE NEXT GIRL AND TO SHOW THE DIVERSITY AND INCLUSION THERE," she says. "I've gotten numerous messages from mothers and from young girls who say, 'You're my inspiration.' And that's what I strive to be—I want to inspire people to be whatever it is that they aspire to be. In that moment, I felt like I had taken my next step toward the goal of being an example for some young girl or boy who had a dream but had never seen themselves reflected in the people who held those positions."

Meanwhile, Branch was a student at the University of Mississippi, majoring in integrated marketing communications with an emphasis on public relations. She also launched her own cosmetics company, Branch Beauty, capitalizing on her popular YouTube makeup tutorials with products like eyeshadows and long-wearing liquid lip tints perfect for the pageant stage and beyond.

"I'VE ALWAYS HAD A LOVE FOR MAKEUP, AND I LEARNED THE WORD 'ENTREPRENEUR' WHEN I WAS FIVE YEARS OLD," SHE SAYS. "I'VE ALWAYS HAD IT IN THE BACK OF MY MIND. I WAS IN A PHASE OF MY LIFE WHERE I WAS ASKING MYSELF, WHAT IS MY NEXT GOAL? WHAT'S NEXT FOR ME? I MADE IT HAPPEN, AND IT'S SLOWLY EXPANDING. IT'S JUST A LOT OF FUN."

The reactions from back home after winning the Miss USA crown were "overwhelming, but in the most incredible way," Branch says. "The amount of love and support that Mississippi has shown me over the years has been amazing, but the amount of love and support that I received after that moment was just almost unfathomable. It's indescribable how proud I am to represent each and every individual in the state."

And while she remains open to the career opportunities that might present themselves after her year in the spotlight—she mentions the entertainment industry as a possible target—Branch says nothing can diminish her fondness for the state of Mississippi. "I miss the calmness, the sense of peace that's there," she says. "I miss the trees, the birds. New York is a concrete jungle, and while it's amazing the hustle and bustle there, I miss the nature, seeing the fields of sunflowers, and the other little things that make it feel like home. There are a lot of hidden gems in Mississippi. There's more here than people realize. There's a lot of history, and a lot of growth as well. You have to be ready to explore."

Between visits home, Branch is steadily focused on lending a helping hand to kids facing the same hardships she did—with projects including special children's books and a letter-writing campaign for incarcerated parents—while at the same time reflecting on the road she has already taken.

"For years, I've looked up to other Miss USAs and I have followed their journeys, I've seen where life was taking them, and I aspired to be in their role. So I'm grateful that I've been able to make this dream a reality," she says. "Honestly, I just want people to remember my heart. I want them to remember the work that I've done, the impact that I tried to make, and the lives that I tried to change. And I hope I've made Mississippi proud."

The sixth of eight children, Branch faced a life-changing struggle a few years later when her father was arrested and sentenced to more than a decade of prison time. Left at home to deal with feelings of loneliness and shame, Branch sought to find a way out of the darkness—not just for herself but for other children going through similar circumstances.

"You forget there's a family being directly affected by the situation," she says. "So often, children become abandoned by their parents once they're incarcerated, they end up in the foster care system, and they end up incarcerated themselves later. It's just a cycle of negativity. I knew that I had a strong support system that kept me from becoming a statistic, and I wanted to be able to be that voice and that encourager for other children who might not have someone to keep them on the right track."

Branch's voice grew louder once she began competing in local pageants at the age of 17. Aside from her warm brown eyes and her brilliant smile, she captured the minds of audiences and judges with her passion and purpose, including a social justice initiative she dubbed "FINDING YOUR WAY: EMPOWERING CHILDREN OF INCARCERATED PARENTS." She won the title of Miss Mississippi, part of the Miss America program, in 2018, and a year later she became Miss Mississippi USA, setting the stage for her Miss USA win.

"I just really wanted to make a positive impact, and kind of change the stigma," she says. "I wanted to let people know that it's a situation that's out of the child's control,

Mississippi Women Leading the Way

FOLLOW THESE WOMEN WHO HAVE MADE THEIR MARK ON MISSISSIPPI

The list of Mississippi women who have been leaders in their fields is longer than this guide could possibly hold—from activists who changed the nation during the Civil Rights Movement to GRAMMY® award-winning musicians, Pulitzer Prize-winning authors and Olympic Gold medalists. Discover some of the women who shaped the history of Mississippi, then visit the places where their legacies live on.

CIVIL RIGHTS

MYRLIE EVERS and her husband Medgar worked together during the Civil Rights Movement during the 1950s and early 1960s, when he served as field secretary for the NAACP. He was the face of the organization and she ran the field office. On June 12, 1963, Medgar was assassinated in the carport of their home in Jackson. Myrlie continued her activism in Mississippi and California, and became the chair of the NAACP in 1995—the first woman to serve in that role. In 1998, she established the Medgar and Myrlie Evers Institute to preserve and advance the legacy of their civil rights activism. The Medgar and Myrlie Evers Home in Jackson is now a National Monument located in the Capital/River region of the state.

In the Hills region, explore the legacy of journalist and anti-lynching activist IDA B. WELLS, whose childhood home in Holly Springs is now the Ida B. Wells-Barnett Museum and Cultural Center of African American History. Born to enslaved parents and orphaned at age 16, Wells became a teacher to support herself and her siblings. Her work as a journalist brought national attention to the horror of lynching, as well as women's suffrage. Wells died in 1931 but her legacy lives on: nearly nine decades later in 2020, the Pulitzer Prize Board gave a posthumous award to Wells “for her outstanding and courageous reporting on the horrific and vicious violence against African Americans during the era of lynching.”

“Nobody’s free until everybody’s free,” said civil rights leader FANNIE LOU HAMER, who made it her life’s work to ensure freedom for all. Her list of accomplishments included organizing Mississippi’s Freedom Summer, co-founding both the Freedom Democratic Party and the National Women’s Political Caucus and helping thousands of Black Mississippians become registered voters. Visit the Fannie Lou Hamer Memorial Garden and see a statue of the activist at her burial place in the city of Ruleville.

MUSIC

Country superstar and GRAMMY® winner FAITH HILL grew up in the small town of Star—where her marker on the Mississippi Country Music Trail can be found today. She is one of the best-selling country music artists of all time.

LEONTYNE PRICE is celebrated in her hometown of Laurel with a downtown park. She was born in 1927. She became the first African American leading performer with the New York City Metropolitan Opera. Price has won 19 GRAMMY® Awards and the Presidential Medal of Freedom.

Stop in the name of love and appreciate the musical legacy of MARY WILSON, a founding member of the most successful Motown group of the 1960s, Diana Ross and The Supremes. Wilson was born in Greenville in the Delta region of the state. She and her fellow group members were inducted into the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame in 1988.

LITERATURE

The Pulitzer Prize-winning author EUDORA WELTY lived and wrote in her Jackson home. The house is now a museum open for tours, during which book lovers can see the author's typewriter and trace her path to success through an exhibit based on her memoir, One Writer's Beginnings.

Poet NATASHA TRETHERWEY was born in Gulfport, and Mississippi's Coastal region is featured prominently in her writing. Her poetry collection Native Guard, which includes poems exploring African American history on Ship Island, won the Pulitzer Prize. She has served as both United States and Mississippi Poet Laureate.

KATHRYN STOCKETT set the publishing world on fire with her debut novel, The Help, in 2009. Set in Jackson (where Stockett grew up), the book explores relationships between women of color and the white women who employed them as domestic workers during the 1960s. The book was made into a movie that was filmed in Jackson and Greenwood by director Tate Taylor and earned Octavia Spencer an Oscar for Best Supporting Actress.

SPORTS

BRITNEY REESE leapt to success as the gold medalist in long jump in the 2012 Summer Olympics, only eight years after graduating from Gulfport High School in the Coastal region. Reese also captured the world championship in the event seven times and holds the indoor American record with a distance of 7.23 meters.

Born in the Coastal region city of Lucedale, RUTHIE BOLTON played guard for the Sacramento Monarchs WNBA team from 1997 to 2004 and was part of the gold medal-winning United States women's basketball teams in the 1996 and 2000 Summer Olympics. Bolton was inducted into the Women's Basketball Hall of Fame in 2011.

SARAH THOMAS, a Pascagoula native and Brandon resident, was the first woman to officiate a college bowl game and the first woman to officiate a Super Bowl. In 2015, Thomas was the first woman to be hired as a full-time NFL official.

MEDIA

Mississippi has been home to quite a few leading women on screen, and quite a few of these have graced the cover of the Official Mississippi Tour Guide in the past, including Robin Roberts, Sela Ward and Erin Napier.

Before she was a Good Morning America anchor, ROBIN ROBERTS was a high school sports star in Pass Christian. Roberts's devotion to her Mississippi roots has been a frequent subject on the air; she revisited Hurricane Katrina's devastation of the Coast in an ABC special, Katrina: 10 Years After the Storm, in 2015. She cites Mary Mahoney's in Biloxi and Lil Ray's in Gulfport as two of her favorite restaurants.

SELA WARD may be best known for her Emmy-winning roles in television dramas like Sisters and Once and Again and her big-screen performances in The Fugitive and Gone Girl, but she's equally devoted to her hometown of Meridian in the Pines region, where she founded the Hope Village home for abused and neglected children, and where she is among the Hall of Fame honorees at the state-of-the-art Mississippi Arts and Entertainment Experience, aka The MAX museum.

ERIN NAPIER and her husband Ben have shown the country what Southern hospitality, an appreciation for history and hard work can do for their hometown of Laurel on HGTV's hit show Home Town. This talented couple wowed viewers with their magical renovations of historic homes, sparking a new passion for revitalization from the minute they aired on HGTV. Home Town was the network's highest rated pilot ever and is now in its sixth season.

CULINARY

Jackson native CAT CORA trained at the Culinary Institute of America before becoming a foodie TV fixture on shows including Melting Pot, Date Plate and Around the World in 80 Plates. She is best known as the first woman Iron Chef on Food Network's Iron Chef America. She has opened more than 18 restaurants around the world. Cora is the founder and president of the nonprofit Chefs for Humanity, aimed at reducing global hunger.

ELIZABETH HEISKELL has easily shifted from a stint as head chef at Greenwood-based Viking Range Corporation to crafting the renowned Debutante Farmer bloody mary mix to becoming a food contributor on the Today Show and judging Food Network competitions. All the while, she operates a thriving catering business based in Oxford, and she has authored three best-selling cookbooks.

The woman behind one of the South's most legendary restaurants was MARY MAHONEY, who in 1964 launched Mary Mahoney's Old French House in a home built in 1737 in Biloxi. Mahoney's winning concept—serving up a combination of New Orleans and coastal cuisine with plenty of Southern hospitality—has drawn guests ranging from Elvis Presley to President Jimmy Carter.

INDULGE IN THE CULINARY CRAVINGS THAT WILL HAVE YOU COMING BACK FOR MORE.

There is no better place to experience “The Hospitality State” in its most welcoming—and delicious—form than around the dinner table. Here you will find everything from a mouthwatering melting pot of savory comfort foods to spicy Creole-inspired delicacies and sophisticated new takes on old favorites.

DON'T LEAVE UNTIL YOU TRY

TAMALES

Mississippians are no stranger to the heat, but in this case, “hot” describes something else Mississippi has become famous for: tamales. The HOT TAMALES TRAIL, created by the Southern Foodways Alliance, is a unique and tasty way to traverse the state, sampling the best of these “hot” grubs along the way.

CAPITAL/RIVER

In Natchez, at local favorite FAT MAMA'S TAMALES, nothing goes better with a plate of spicy cornhusk-wrapped tamales than a refreshing “Knock-You-Naked” margarita. SOLLY'S TAMALES in Vicksburg is another great mom-and-pop restaurant serving some of the state’s best tamales.

HILLS

For a delicious twist on the traditional tamale, AJAX DINER in Oxford has a hot tamale pie on its menu that is so good it will leave you asking for seconds.

DELTA

Perhaps the best place to get tamales in Mississippi is the Delta, and since 1941, the tamales at DOE'S EAT PLACE in Greenville have been the stuff of legend. With exactly one item on their menu, WHITE FRONT CAFÉ in Rosedale prepares its all-beef tamales with a time-perfected blend of meat, cornmeal and peppery spice. The self-proclaimed “Hot Tamale Capital of the World,” Greenville fires things up each October at the three-day DELTA HOT TAMALES FESTIVAL, which features live music and the crowning of Miss Hot Tamale.

The hometown creation of Corinth, the slugburger is a deep-fried burger made of beef and a meat extender, such as soybeans or potato flour. ## THERE'S A REASON MISSISSIPPI IS KNOWN AS THE "BIRTHPLACE OF AMERICA'S MUSIC."

From the pulsating sounds of old-time rock 'n' roll, to the comfy chords of backyard country music, to the raw blues vocals that are as rich as their native soil, Mississippi's musical impact has been felt around the world.

MISSISSIPPI MUSEUMS

CAPITAL/RIVER

Country music star Marty Stuart's personal collection of country music memorabilia will be on display in May 2022 at the TWO MISSISSIPPI MUSEUMS in Jackson. #### DELTA

Long after Robert Johnson made the fabled deal with the devil in exchange for guitar mastery at the crossroads of highways 49 and 61, the Mississippi Delta has become a global epicenter for all-things blues; the GATEWAY TO THE BLUES MUSEUM in Tunica, B.B. KING MUSEUM AND DELTA INTERPRETIVE CENTER in Indianola and DELTA BLUES MUSEUM in Clarksdale only scratch the surface of Mississippi's rich blues heritage.

While the rise of the blues certainly sent a shockwave throughout the music industry, the GRAMMY MUSEUM® MISSISSIPPI in Cleveland not only celebrates this phenomenon, but also the timeless legacies of all music genres.

MUSIC FESTIVALS

MISSISSIPPI MUSIC SITES

TRAILS

Over 200 MISSISSIPPI BLUES TRAIL markers traverse the state; from cotton fields to gravesites, churches to train depots and clubs to hotels, the markers chronicle Mississippi's storied blues history. Likewise, blues music's first cousin, country music, also has a prominent place in Mississippi's soundtrack, and the COUNTRY MUSIC TRAIL commemorates such artists as Conway Twitty, Faith Hill and, most recently, Johnny Cash, who spent one night in the "Starkville City Jail."

DELTA

Blues aficionados from across the globe visit the Delta each year to learn more about this unique brand of music, and no trip is complete without first going to see the infamous CROSSROADS in Clarksdale, where bluesman Robert Johnson is said to have struck a bargain with the devil. DOCKERY FARMS, located on Highway 8 in Sunflower County, is another important place in blues history, as it is widely considered "the birthplace of the blues." Farther north in Tunica, the HOLLYWOOD CAFÉ shares the spotlight equally with the bluesmen who frequently performed there and then with musician Marc Cohn, whose hit single "Walking in Memphis" was inspired by the diner.

HILLS

In an industry largely dominated by male musicians, Lizzie Douglas, also known as Memphis Minnie, became one of the 20th century's preeminent female blues guitarists and singers. Her GRAVESITE in Walls is a stop on the Mississippi Blues Trail.

The Mississippi Story

EXPLORE MISSISSIPPI'S RICH HISTORY AND CULTURAL HERITAGE.

History buffs are sure to appreciate the innumerable opportunities to learn about Mississippi's earliest settlers, as well as its later roles in both the Civil War and Civil Rights Movement.

INDIAN MOUNDS

Thousands of years before Columbus arrived, Native Americans were Mississippi's original inhabitants. There were three major tribes—the Chickasaws, Choctaws and Natchez Indians—as well as several smaller tribes, that reaped the benefits of Mississippi's warm climate, fertile soil and abundant wildlife. Today, the story of Mississippi's Native Americans is illustrated most clearly by the mounds they built.

DELTA

Sitting on more than 42 acres of land north of Greenville is WINTERVILLE MOUNDS, home to 12 prehistoric mounds, and outside of Hollandale are the ARCOLA MOUNDS, which were likely settled by Native Americans as early as 900 A.D.

HILLS

The CHICKASAW HERITAGE CENTER, located off the Natchez Trace in Tupelo, was created to not only encourage the preservation and protection of Chickasaw heritage sites, but also to educate the public on the cultural importance of the tribe and its contributions to Mississippi and beyond.

CAPITAL/RIVER

In Natchez, the GRAND VILLAGE OF THE NATCHEZ INDIANS is a 128-acre park that includes a nature trail and three prehistoric Native American mounds. The NATCHEZ POWOW is held annually in Natchez, and this year's event is slated for March 26 and will be held on the Natchez Bluff overlooking the beautiful Mississippi River. Make plans to attend and shop American Indian crafts and enjoy a traditional stickball game, intertribal dancing and food.

Outside of Jackson, there are two POCAHONTAS MOUNDS, one of which stands 20 feet tall and is thought to have been built as early as 750 A.D.

CAPITAL/RIVER

In Jackson, the adjoining MUSEUM OF MISSISSIPPI HISTORY and MISSISSIPPI CIVIL RIGHTS MUSEUM—collectively known as the “TWO MISSISSIPPI MUSEUMS”—use a combination of artifacts, photographs, videos and interactive exhibits to tell Mississippi's powerful and complex history. Upcoming exhibits include “THE NEGRO MOTORIST GREEN BOOK GUIDE,” a traveling Smithsonian exhibit that explores the challenges facing African Americans in the early 20th century, and the “GREAT MIGRATION INITIATIVE,” a look at the largest internal movement of African Americans in American history that coincides with an exhibit by the same name at the MISSISSIPPI MUSEUM OF ART.

The OLD CAPITOL MUSEUM, built in 1839, is the site of some of Mississippi's most important legislative actions, such as the 1839 Married Women's Property Act and the drafting of the 1868 and 1890 state constitutions; the museum is free to the public. Also located in the capital city is the SMITH ROBERTSON MUSEUM, a commemoration of the achievements and contributions of African American residents.

Part of the VICKSBURG NATIONAL MILITARY PARK is the U.S.S. CAIRO gunboat, which was sunken during an 1862 battle and 100 years later resurrected and partially reconstructed as a naval museum.

COASTAL

Galleries and visiting exhibitions honoring decorated veterans can be found at the MISSISSIPPI ARMED FORCES MUSEUM, located near Hattiesburg at the Camp Shelby Joint Forces Training Center. Bearing witness to the service and sacrifice of African American soldiers, the AFRICAN AMERICAN MILITARY MUSEUM in Hattiesburg is the only surviving USO Club built exclusively for African American soldiers in the United States.

Because of its strategic location along the Mississippi River, Mississippi played a key role in the Civil War and was the setting of a number of major battles—both inside the state border and directly outside it. For a closer look at this trying time, several of these battlefields, museums, interpretative centers, military parks and other sites provide invaluable educational opportunities.

CIVIL RIGHTS

With more elected African American officials than any other state, Mississippi today is the picture of progress and changing times. However, that was not always the case, particularly in the 1950s and 60s when intolerance and tragedy catapulted Mississippi into the national spotlight and ignited the Civil Rights Movement. Because the journey toward healing, growth and progress is ongoing, the MISSISSIPPI FREEDOM TRAIL, home to more than two dozen markers commemorating the people and places around the state that played a crucial role in the Civil Rights Movement, was established in 2011. Likewise, the MISSISSIPPI CIVIL RIGHTS MUSEUM's eight interactive galleries shed light on the impact that Mississippi's fight for equality had on the nation as a whole.

DELTA

Widely considered the spark to the Civil Rights Movement's flame was 14-year-old EMMETT TILL's murder in 1955 in the Delta community of Money; today a Mississippi Freedom Trail marker denotes the spot where the teenager was accused of offending a white shopkeeper. In Cleveland, another must-visit stop on the Mississippi Freedom Trail is the AMZIE MOORE HOUSE MUSEUM, where early civil rights leaders worked tirelessly to increase voter registration. In Ruleville, a memorial garden and 8-foot-tall statue honoring Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party leader FANNIE LOU HAMER, commemorates the activist's efforts.

COASTAL

CAPITAL/RIVER

First occupied in 1842, the MISSISSIPPI GOVERNOR'S MANSION is the second-oldest continuously occupied governor's residence in the country.

The riverfront city of Natchez is teeming with historic properties, many of which offer year-round tours, and LONGWOOD, the octagonal mansion constructed in 1860 but never finished due to the onset of the Civil War, is perhaps the most famous. Offering a rare glimpse into life as a free African American during the pre-Civil War era are the WILLIAM JOHNSON HOUSE, now operated by the National Park Service as a museum, and the SMITH-BONTURA-EVANS HOUSE, an 1852-built residential-commercial complex.

Port Gibson's FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, built in 1860 in a Romanesque Revival style, is unique because of its "hand pointing to heaven" that sits atop the steeple. Nearby lies the WINDSOR RUINS, an iconic site capturing the public's imagination after a fire destroyed the original estate in 1890 and all that remained were its 29 enormous columns.

CAPITAL/RIVER

The former GREYHOUND BUS STATION in Jackson tells the story of the Freedom Riders and the arrest of 329 activists trying to integrate public transportation facilities. On the campus of Jackson State University, the former Council of Federated Organizations meeting space for various civil rights groups in 1961 is now the COFO CIVIL RIGHTS EDUCATION CENTER, hosting visitors from around the world.

HILLS

On the same day that he spoke in Laurel, King traversed the state to MT. ZION MISSIONARY BAPTIST CHURCH in Batesville to promote participation in a rally in the nation's capital. In neighboring Oxford, the statue of JAMES MEREDITH that now resides on the campus of the University of Mississippi serves as a permanent reminder of the obstacles overcome by the first African American student to gain admission.

In Holly Springs, the IDA B. WELLS-BARNETT MUSEUM is a testament to this human rights advocate's lifelong commitment to social justice—long before it became an official movement, and Wells-Barnett's alma mater RUST COLLEGE was later a major hub for civil rights activities in north Mississippi.

In 2021, the City of Aberdeen launched the 15-stop BLACK HISTORY TRAIL, which includes schoolhouses, churches, parks and other historic sites that share the area's African American heritage.

HISTORIC HOMES AND SACRED SPACES

COASTAL

Visit the oldest standing structure in Pascagoula. The LAPOINTE-KREBS HOUSE AND MUSEUM in Pascagoula was built in 1757, dating back to the French Colonial Period, predating the American Revolutionary War. Today the home has been meticulously restored and is open as a museum.

DELTA

The 9,000-square-foot, immaculately restored BELMONT in Greenville, which was constructed in 1857 and is the last of its kind along the river in the Mississippi Delta, is now open for tours, special events and overnight visits.

PINES

In Columbus, FRIENDSHIP CEMETERY was the location of the first Decoration Day in 1866, the precursor to Memorial Day.

One of Meridian's only historic homes open for tours, MERREHOPE is an 1858 Greek Revival home that over the course of time changed owners and underwent both Italianate and neoclassical renovations, making it one of Mississippi's most architecturally fascinating properties.

HILLS

Unbeknownst to many, GRENADA LAKE, located in the small town of Grenada, is consistently ranked the nation's best trophy crappie fishing lake. SARDIS LAKE, ARKABUTLA LAKE and ENID LAKE are also on the country's top 20 list for catching crappie. For high-quality fishing with a different kind of bite, travel to the far northeast corner of Mississippi to PICKWICK LAKE for what is widely considered the country's best smallmouth bass fishing.

DELTA

South of Greenville is LAKE WASHINGTON, a closed-off oxbow, where the crappie are famously bountiful, but the lake is also brimming with bass, catfish and bream.

CAPITAL/RIVER

The BARNETT RESERVOIR in Ridgeland is home to more than 33,000 acres of freshwater fishing, particularly for large-mouth, striped and spotted bass, crappie, bream and catfish. EAGLE LAKE, just north of Vicksburg, is another popular spot for fishing and is home to several species of bass and crappie.

COASTAL

Numerous DEEP-SEA FISHING CHARTERS are available and staffed by local experts who specialize in offshore angling. For the competitive fishermen, there are several fishing tournaments on the coast, namely the MISSISSIPPI DEEP SEA FISHING RODEO, a 74-year-old summer tradition, and the MISSISSIPPI GULF COAST BILLFISH CLASSIC, where teams compete for millions of dollars in prize money.

HUNTING

Stretching across more than 665,000 acres—from the dense coastal marshes to the rolling Appalachian foothills—are Mississippi's 52 WILDLIFE MANAGEMENT AREAS. These expansive and diverse areas encompass over 1,000 miles and are open to hunting deer, ducks, wild turkeys and other game.

A favorite Mississippi pastime is deer hunting, and if it's a trophy buck you're after, you've come to the right place. Mississippi is home to nearly two million white-tailed deer—a denser population than in any other state—and continues to rank No. 1 in the nation for the percentage of harvested bucks that are at least 3.5 years old. In fact, Mississippi hunters average almost two deer each. And with one of the nation's longest hunting seasons—from as early as the beginning of October to mid-February depending on location—Mississippi deer hunting can't be beat.

Deer aren't the only game being hunted in Mississippi's sprawling outdoors. Mississippi ranks among the nation's top five states for duck harvests and also provides ample opportunities for turkey, dove, rabbit and squirrel hunting.

ECOTOURISM

HILLS

Visitors can purchase meat raised on the farm at homeplacepastures.com, which has been touted by Food & Wine magazine as Mississippi's best mail-order food gift.

Mississippi's National Heritage Areas

"A NEW KIND OF NATIONAL PARK" is what President Ronald Reagan called the gems that are America's 55 National Heritage Areas. Mississippi's three National Heritage Areas are treasures that embody the state's most fascinating historical contributions, cultural influences and natural aesthetics. Representing three uniquely beautiful regions of the state—the Delta, Coastal and Hills landscapes—Mississippi's National Heritage Areas, though vastly different, are equally deserving of this designation.

DELTA

Known as the "Cradle of American Culture," the Mississippi Delta may be best known as the birthplace of the blues, but there's much more to this eclectic area than just its ubiquitous musical legacy. The Mississippi Delta is a celebration of the vivacious musical communities and the artists who inhabit them; the fertile farm lands; and the immense cultural, historic and artistic impact that the Delta has had on the state and world. Much like the mighty Mississippi River that flows through it, this 18-county region has a creative pulse running through it that's as vibrant as its homegrown, internationally recognized blues chords. Today, the Mississippi Delta National Heritage Area is the only area in the United States to receive an additional "National Treasure" designation from Congress and the National Park Service for its irreplaceable contributions to the American story and much-needed preservation efforts to ensure its existence for future generations. Here you will find a plethora of interactive museums and galleries to learn about the interesting and complex Delta history, including the Museum of the Mississippi Delta in Greenwood.

COASTAL

Where the golden sunset collides with the warm Gulf of Mexico waters and khaki-colored sand massages visitors' toes, the six-county Mississippi Gulf Coast National Heritage Area beckons. Here, nature's beauty is on full display. First inhabited by Native Americans before being colonized by French and Spanish explorers, the region had spectacular scenery that was rivaled only by its rivers, swamps and ocean waters brimming with life and opportunity. Centuries later, coastal Mississippi's allure continues to captivate artists, musicians and writers alike; the world-renowned seafood industry and mouthwatering Southern cuisine draw guests from around the globe; and uninhibited access to the Gulf of Mexico has opened doors that the state's earliest residents could never have imagined. Home to the nation's largest supplier of US Navy surface combatants, the Mississippi Gulf Coast is a proud leader in both shipbuilding and aerospace innovation. Located in Hancock County, the NASA Stennis Space Center, with its state-of-the-art rocket and jet engine testing facilities, has played a crucial role in the nation's aerospace and defense industry for 60 years.

HILLS

At the intersection of the Appalachian foothills and the Mississippi Delta lies the Mississippi Hills, a region of the state home to musical and literary giants such as Elvis Presley, William Faulkner, John Grisham, Howlin' Wolf and Tammy Wynette. But while its cultural impact has been undoubtedly felt around the world, this area, comprised entirely of 19 counties plus parts of 11 others, has also left its mark on African American, Native American and Civil War history. For example, along the scenic 444-mile Natchez Trace Parkway that winds through the Mississippi Hills are the early 19th-century capital of the Chickasaw Nation and the site of the Battle of Shiloh, and civil rights trailblazer and journalist Ida B. Wells also called this area home. The historical and cultural significance of the Hills region, combined with the natural beauty of areas like the Lee Tartt Nature Preserve that are perfect for canoeing, hiking and exploring the great outdoors, make the Mississippi Hills National Heritage Area an asset to the entire state.

BLUES TRAIL

ROLL DOWN THE WINDOWS AND CRANK UP THE STEREO FOR A DRIVE INTO MUSICAL HISTORY.

They say the best journeys are the ones that take us home, and that couldn't be more fitting for the followers of the Mississippi Blues Trail. After all, most of today's popular music actually finds its roots in the blues, a genre that was born in the Mississippi Delta.

This sublimely circular journey starts in the city of Cleveland at Dockery Farms, which is widely believed to be the actual birthplace of the blues in the early 20th century, when Charley Patton was playing tunes at all-night picnics and teaching guitar to prodigies like Howlin' Wolf. The 200-plus trail markers point to a host of other landmarks of the blues movement around the state, including the Clarksdale crossroads where Robert Johnson supposedly sold his soul to the devil in exchange for guitar-playing wizardry. The birthplace of B.B. King near Itta Bena is only a short jaunt from the late performer's award-winning museum in Indianola. And the historic Blue Front Café in Bentonia is still open to locals and travelers jonesing for a real juke joint experience.

Ready for a respite from the road? Make your last stop—where else—back in Cleveland, where the GRAMMY Museum® Mississippi, the only museum of its kind outside of Los Angeles, explains how songwriters and musical pioneers paved the path from the blues to the music of today.

COUNTRY MUSIC TRAIL

BREAK FREE FROM BORING AND SEE THE SIGHTS THAT LOCKED UP MISSISSIPPI'S STATUS AS A LYRICAL LEGEND.

Even Johnny Cash couldn't resist Mississippi's natural charms. After a concert at Mississippi State University in the spring of 1965, the Man in Black was arrested for public drunkenness after being caught picking flowers on private property. Cash spent a night behind bars, and it turned into inspiration for his song "Starkville City Jail." More than half a century later, the infamous incident inspired the most recent addition to the Mississippi Country Music Trail, which traces some of the state's most melodic memories.

The marker commemorating the Man in Black's night in jail is the 35th of its kind on a trail that extends from the Coast up to the Hills region and beyond. Discover the final resting place of the Father of Country Music, Jimmie Rodgers, in Meridian, a city that also offers a museum dedicated to the legendary performer. See the childhood stomping grounds of Faith Hill in the aptly named town of Star. Explore Tremont, the hometown of Tammy Wynette, dubbed the First Lady of Country Music.

The star-studded series plays on along the state's country roads, from the Delta homes of Charley Pride and Conway Twitty to Jerry Lee Lewis' Nesbit ranch in the Hills region and on to Philadelphia, the Pines-region city where Marty Stuart is building the Congress of Country Music to house his vast collection of country music memorabilia. Inspiration, as Cash and the rest of these famous folks discovered in Mississippi, is all around.

SAY THEIR NAMES: EMMETT TILL. MEDGAR EVERS. GEORGE LEE.

More than six decades ago, a crusade was born along Mississippi's backroads. Sparked by the murder of teenager Emmett Till in the Delta town of Money, the Civil Rights Movement was born as brave Mississippians stood up for their rights to sit wherever they would like on a bus, eat at a lunch counter without question and check out books at their local public libraries.

Many of the heroes of this important chapter in American history are represented by markers on the Mississippi Freedom Trail, launched in 2011 in conjunction with the 50th-anniversary reunion of the Freedom Riders. The Greyhound Bus Station in Jackson where the riders disembarked is now part of the trail. Markers are also found at a Biloxi beach where a peaceful wade-in was met with violence in 1960, on the grounds of the State Capitol where James Meredith's "March Against Fear" concluded in 1966, and outside William Chapel in Ruleville where early civil rights activists gathered for meetings.

Other markers remember those who paid the ultimate price for their efforts to unify the country. See activist Medgar Evers' historic Jackson home—now a national monument—where he was assassinated in 1963. Learn of the dark days when Rev. George Lee of Belzoni was killed after speaking at a 1955 voter registration rally, and about a Jackson synagogue that was bombed in 1967 after Rabbi Perry Nussbaum spoke out in support of racial justice. Their names all live on, as indelibly emblazoned on these markers as they are on the hearts of so many around the country and around the world.

THE SHEER TALENT OF MISSISSIPPI NATIVES WILLIAM FAULKNER, WALKER PERCY, EUDORA WELTY AND TENNESSEE WILLIAMS CONTINUES TO CAPTURE THE IMAGINATIONS OF READERS AROUND THE WORLD.

The silent purrs of their pens grew into a roar that transformed the literary world. They are literature’s lions. If you’re among their fans, you won’t want to miss the open-book-shaped markers along the Mississippi Writers Trail that highlight the hometowns and sites that were pivotal to Mississippi’s native sons and daughters—those whose names will live on forever through their award-winning literary works.

Launched in 2018, the Mississippi Writers Trail features the stories of some of America’s greatest storytellers. The first marker was placed at the Jackson home of Pulitzer Prize winner Eudora Welty, who let readers explore and experience her home state by using its small towns and rural landscapes as the settings of her books. Since then, markers also have been placed at sites that were important in the lives of Faulkner, Williams, Percy and a half-dozen other important authors—from the historic to the contemporary. The most recent marker placed in Centreville educates trail-followers on the life and works of Anne Moody, whose frank and heartbreaking 1968 memoir Coming of Age in Mississippi made her a powerful force in the civil rights movement.

Future trail markers will honor writers like National Book Award winner Jesmyn Ward and former U.S. Poet Laureate Natasha Trethewey, and a committee of literary scholars continues to identify additional authors for recognition on the Mississippi Writers Trail. Just like a great book that you can’t put down, this story is still unfolding page by page.

TAKE A MODERN EXCURSION TO ANCIENT GROUNDS.

Their temples and homes have long been erased by the passage of time, but striking visible evidence of some of Mississippi's earliest residents still stands in the form of earthen mounds built as many as 2,000 years ago. These mounds, among the largest and oldest in the nation, offer an unforgettable glimpse into the societies of prehistoric America.

The Mississippi Mound Trail stretches 350 miles along the Highway 61 corridor, all the while highlighting Native American earthworks at 33 sites. State archaeologists say the oldest mounds, located near Batesville, date back to the Woodland Period, which began in 1 A.D., Mississippi has actually been inhabited for 12,000 years or more.

Many of the mounds along the trail, built as burial sites, temple foundations, and other hubs of long-ago life, can be viewed from parking areas beside public roadways and are marked by educational signs. Four sites—Grand Village of the Natchez Indians, Pocahontas Rest Area and Welcome Center, Winterville Mounds Archaeological Park, and Emerald Mound, are also accessible on foot and feature additional interpretive information and exhibits.

COASTAL PRESERVES

The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources' Coastal Preserves Program was developed in 1992 by authority of the Wetlands Protection Act. The program ensures the ecological health of Mississippi's coastal wetlands by acquiring, protecting and managing these sensitive ecosystems. Mississippi's Coastal Preserves program currently includes approximately 30,000 of the 72,000 acres of Mississippi's coastal wetlands.

Experience the great outdoors in Lowndes County and Clay County. Play a round of championship golf at Mossy Oak and Old Waverly, or indulge your inner sportsman at Burnt Oak Lodge or Prairie Wildlife, the only Orvis-endorsed sporting estate in Mississippi.

Cheer on the champions in Starkville, home of Mississippi State University, the 2021 College World Series baseball champions.

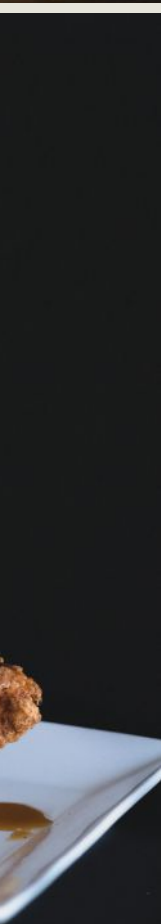

With its 676 grand historic properties, 130 restaurants, 1200 hotel and B&B rooms, convenient Golden Triangle Regional Airport, proud Air Force legacy, championship golf and endless opportunities for fun, the secret’s out on Columbus—let us help you plan your next getaway.
