DARIUS RUCKER CELEBRATES THE RETURN OF SOUTH CAROLINA MUSIC FESTIVALS AND SHARES SOME OF HIS FAVORITES.

MUSIC FEST REVIVAL

BY LIBBY WIERSEMA

Country superstar Darius Rucker might be crooning about amore in his hit song, “My Masterpiece,” but these words could easily apply to another love of his: a live audience. When the pandemic prompted inevitable show cancellations in 2020, it wasn’t just a blow for fans—musicians were feeling the loss, too. As the festival circuit shut down, it left a significant void in Rucker’s world. After all, it was through festival performances as front man for Hootie and the Blowfish that he first connected with audiences and forged his identity as a musical artist. So, when he and his current band once again commanded the stage at the 2021 Carolina Country Music Fest, it was one of the most memorable moments of his career.

“Man, when we hit that stage in Myrtle Beach, it was like a weight was lifted up off our shoulders

*"I was born with a heart with a beat like a rolling stone because it was the longest any of us had ever gone without playing to a live audience," he said. "You know, I hadn't gone two months without playing probably since I was about 19 or 20, so it was such a relief."

Rucker was a late bloomer of sorts when it came to festival experiences. Surprisingly, the man who would one day headline some of the country's biggest music fests never found himself in the festival audience while growing up. "The first music festival I attended was one I played with Hootie and the Blowfish at Five Points in Columbia," he remembered. "Those early festivals, especially the big ones, were special. It was something we wanted to do again because the crowds were so fun and great."

Here's something else that's great: the return of music festivals across the Palmetto State. Organizers have been busy securing entertainment, recruiting vendors and tweaking protocol strategies to ensure a safe environment as music lovers gather to celebrate the world's most universal language. Here are some of Rucker's favorite fests guaranteed to make fans and musicians feel like they are finally back where they belong.

The Greenville Country Music Fest in Simpsonville has only been around since 2019, but it quickly evolved into an end-of-summer ritual for music lovers across the Carolinas. The vibe is loose and giddy with musical acts doing their thing on multiple stages as fans move to the tunes, take on the mechanical bull, throw a few axes and otherwise have a whole lot of fun—all to a spirited, live country music soundtrack.

Strains of jazz, blues, rock, country and bluegrass fill the air when Bank of America Fall for Greenville cranks up each autumn in downtown Greenville. The three-day event, established in 1982, has exploded to become one of the biggest and best free festivals in the Southeast with more than 200,000 attendees, caboodles of local food vendors and dozens of musical acts. With the Blue Ridge foothills looming in the distance, this festival beckons all to immerse themselves in music, fun and fall.

Order up some fried cookie dough and revel in the live entertainment during the 12-day South Carolina State Fair extravaganza in Columbia. After the pandemic necessitated a 2020 drive-thru set-up, organizers were thrilled to return to a more traditional event in 2021. Amid the amusements, exhibits and attractions, musical artists shore up the schedule of events with both staged and roving performances. Headline acts over the years have run the gamut from Sugarland to the Doobie Brothers to Gladys Knight and, of course, Darius Rucker. Grab the family and experience all the music, fun and food at this highly anticipated October tradition.

The Pee Dee town of Cheraw where jazz great Dizzy Gillespie was born in 1917 pays tribute to its legendary native son with the vibrant South Carolina Jazz Festival. On the third weekend of October, award-winning artists give memorable concerts for jazz-loving audiences who come from across the Carolinas to experience world-renowned performances and some small-town charm. Come celebrate an American icon.

In North Myrtle Beach, the charitable Hootie & The Blowfish Monday After the Masters, hosted by Hootie and the Blowfish, honors two great South Carolina traditions: golf and music. The annual celebrity Pro-Am golf tournament happens on the Monday after the Masters Tournament—hence the nickname, MAM—and culminates with a festive concert headlined by Hootie and the Blowfish. An avid golfer, Rucker and the rest of the band really get behind this philanthropic effort, which has raised millions of dollars to support golf and educational programs for kids in South Carolina. Join in the fun April 2022.

Charleston’s premiere arts festival, Spoleto Festival USA, unfurls a host of musical performances as part of its 17-day run each spring. This year will mark its 46th season, which will once again be brimming with world-class musical entertainment performed in churches, theaters and outdoor venues across the historic city. Symphonic, choral, opera, bluegrass, blues, jazz and more are part of this remarkable expression of musical diversity presented against the magical backdrop of the Holy City.

With acres of coastline, five stages and more than 30 musical acts, the Carolina Country Music Fest in Myrtle Beach is sweeping in scope. Introduced in 2015, this outdoor music festival celebrates the phenomenon that is country music for three high-energy days in June. The rousing beach party draws the crowds, with more than 35,000 revelers coming to Myrtle Beach in 2021 for a sold-out festival. It turned out to be the perfect cure for Rucker’s pandemic blues.

“The crowd and the love and energy they were giving back and giving to each other was just beautiful,” said Rucker about retaking the festival stage. “I can see it in my head right now, and it was awesome to be doing it right here at home in South Carolina.”

FOOD AND DRINK

South Carolina's cuisine is as diverse as it is flavorful. This is the place where centuries-old recipes exist alongside innovative culinary trends. Follow the backroads to stop into off-the-beaten-path barbecue joints. Step up to a trendy food truck, where forward thinking chefs are showing off new takes on classic dishes. Explore the picturesque countryside, where family-owned farms sell artisanal cheese, sun-ripened fruits and freshly baked pastries from their country stores. Or revel in the maritime traditions of the Lowcountry, where tight-knit fishing communities harvest the freshest of seafood—briny oysters, tender blue crabs and meaty shrimp—straight from tidal creeks and bays.

IN GOOD COMPANY

Bluffton

BEACH PICNICS, BACKYARD COOKOUTS, WEEKEND potlucks—there's nothing like gathering with friends and family in South Carolina's warm weather while lingering over a homemade meal. Make your own new tradition with these iconic South Carolina dishes.

DEVILED CRAB

Abundant in South Carolina's Lowcountry from spring through summer, crabs are beloved for their sweet, tender meat, and this dish showcases this delicacy with several other quintessentially Southern ingredients. Recipes vary but expect to see lump crab meat, breadcrumbs, Duke's mayonnaise, Dijon mustard, ketchup, butter, lemon and fresh herbs mixed together—and then stuffed back into the individual crab shells before baking. (Hint: It's perfect for hand-held eating.)

PEACH COBLER

A glorious mishmash of juicy, locally grown peaches simmered with sugar and water, then baked atop a bed of buttery homemade batter, this dessert is a no-fuss crowd favorite. Spoon out a few scoops straight from the baking dish and generously top with whipped cream or vanilla ice cream.

FROGMORE STEW

Also known as Lowcountry Boil, Frogmore Stew (which hails from the St. Helena Island fishing community named Frogmore) is a one-pot dish of shrimp, corn on the cob, new potatoes and smoked sausage. This large format meal is typically served on newspaper, making it perfect for a casual backyard get together.

CHICKEN BOG

It's easy to feed a crowd when you cook up a giant pot of this Lowcountry staple, whose unusual name nods to the soupiness—or, shall we say, bogginess?—of the dish. Simmer shredded chicken meat, smoked sausage, Carolina Gold rice and herbs in flavorful chicken stock until it reaches the perfect consistency.

TOMATO PIE

Summertime means an abundance of sun-ripened tomatoes fresh from the garden, so put them to good use with this savory pie, which combines sliced tomatoes, sauteed sweet onion, fresh basil, cheddar and Parmesan cheeses and tangy Duke's mayonnaise—all layered in a pie crust. Feel free to add some bacon for an even deeper flavor.

FOOD FOR THE SOUL

South Carolina's Chef Ambassadors do more than craft excellent cuisine—they also contribute to their local communities through good deeds that help build a strong sense of kinship and local pride.

Chef Brandon Velie, who helms Juniper, a farm-to-table restaurant located deep within the close-knit peach farming community of Ridge Spring, leapt into action when COVID-19 hit his small town. He and the Juniper team created Community Table: a table that sits out front of the restaurant, providing free produce to anyone in need.

Meanwhile, Chef Jamie Daskalis has long been an active advocate for autism awareness, inspired by her son, James, who was diagnosed with autism at age 3. She hosts sensory-friendly events at Johnny D's, her restaurant in Myrtle Beach, and creates an autism awareness campaign every April. Money collected and raised during these events are donated to two local organizations: Champion Autism Network and SOS Health Care.

SOUTHERN-STYLE FOOD TRUCK FEASTS

Sometimes the best meals come from the most surprising places. From smoky barbecue to spicy soul, taste your way through inventive twists on Southern food, as imagined by local food truck owners. Just walk up to the window and order something delicious.

Root Note

For street food classics that draw inspiration from the South—and around the world—meander to this food truck at The Charleston Pour House on James Island where the ever-changing menu could feature tamarind-chili glazed chicken wings or smoked pork tacos with pickles and sriracha aioli.

HenDough Chicken & Donuts

Crispy fried chicken, artisanal donuts and fluffy biscuits come together for an ingenious mash-up of sweet and savory flavors at Greenville's Gather GVL, an al fresco collection of food truck-style eateries housed in repurposed shipping containers.

A Peace of Soul

Plant-based plates are the name of the game at this vegan food truck in Columbia, where the changing menu features animal-free alternatives to indulgent dishes, such as hot chicken sandwiches, chili cheese hot dogs and barbecue rib sandwiches.

Blackenese Soul Food Hibachi

In Charleston, Creole flavors are ignited with the high-heat char of a Japanese hibachi-style grill. Order the blackened shrimp, chicken or ribeye, each served with collards, green beans, carrots, broccoli, cauliflower and Southern perlo rice.

D'z Pit BBQ

Before you even spot this food truck just off the Old Marion Highway near Florence, you'll probably catch a glimpse and a whiff of billowing smoke—a telltale preview of what awaits: slow-cooked pulled pork, fall-off-the-bone ribs, ultra-tender brisket and all the fixin's.

Fleur de' Licious

A fixture at popular events like Soda City Market in downtown Columbia, fill your belly with Bayou-style dishes at this food truck dishing out powdered sugar-drenched beignets, po-boys piled with crispy shrimp, and overnight-simmered red beans and rice topped with smoked sausage.

Freckles and Giggles

Cool off with a scoop of premium ice cream served from this food truck in Mullins, where rotating flavors include fan favorites like banana puddin', salty caramel, key lime pie and cake batter.

Henry's Hog Hauler

Step up to the window of this mobile version of the brick-and-mortar smokehouse in Greenville to satisfy your carnivorous cravings. Choose from hickory-smoked pork and chicken, plus sides of Brunswick stew, mac 'n' cheese, sweet potato casserole and peach cobbler.

SEA -TO- TABLE

Seafood is more than just a meal in South Carolina—it's a way of life. From nets of shrimp hauled straight from the ocean to gem-like oysters hand harvested from the salt marshes, each ingredient nods to a longstanding heritage of gathering from the waters. The resulting recipes and culinary traditions tout a uniquely South Carolina sense of place.

FISHING

Dreaming of your very own big fish story? Hop aboard a seaworthy vessel with a private charter by Myrtle Beach Sport Fishing. Your experienced captain will take you to the coast's best fishing spots, from nearby saltwater estuaries to the deep sea, where mahi mahi, blue marlin, black seabass, cobia, barracuda and king mackerel swim beneath the waves.

CRABBING

Take in the picturesque coastal scenery and bring home a bucket of blue crabs pulled from the tidal creeks around Hilton Head Island, Daufuskie Island and Bluffton when you go on a crabbing tour with May River Excursions. On this 1.5-hour family-friendly excursion, keep an eye out for dolphins swimming alongside the boat and seabirds soaring overhead.

SHRIMPING

Join the shrimping crew of the Tammy Jane as you trawl the waters off Hilton Head Island with a two-hour Sunset Shrimp Trawl by Vagabond Cruise. You'll learn about the Lowcountry's salt marshes and interwoven ecosystems, sort through the day's catch and then take in views of the sunset.

OYSTERING

Bright, briny and perfectly plump, fresh oysters are a delicacy best enjoyed on the coast. Barrier Island Oyster Co. in Charleston is known for its exceptional Sea Cloud oysters, grown entirely in floating cages—a restorative growing method that reduces demand on wild oyster reefs and slows marshland erosion. Savor a half-dozen of these freshly shucked beauties at Leon's Fine Poultry & Oyster Shop in Charleston.

FOLLOW THE SOUTH CAROLINA CHEESE TRAIL

From the idyllic countryside to sleepy island towns, South Carolina's rural areas are home to an array of cheese artisans. Go on a self-guided tasting tour of the South Carolina Cheese Trail with these farms and creameries.

At Whispering Pines Farm in Seneca, take a tour of a working farm and then stock up on freshly made feta, herbed chevre and their original Mauldinian recipe: a semi-hard cheese soaked in wine. Stroll at your own pace at Split Creek Farm in Anderson, a goat dairy beloved for its light, creamy fromage blanc—sold on its own or melded with almonds and apricots—and its feta marinated in olive oil. At Happy Cow Creamery in Pelzer, hop on a trolley tour (reservations required) to learn about the dairy farm while taking in views of black and white spotted cows lazily grazing the lush fields. This creamery churns out everything from butter to cheddar. For farm tours, friendly animals and a country store selling goat cheese in an assortment of flavors, stop by Goat Daddy's Farm in Elgin, open to the public on Saturdays. Down on Johns Island, book your ticket at The Goatery at Kiawah River, where you'll find artisanal cheeses, farm tours and even goat yoga.

TRY THIS: At Ted's Butcherblock in Charleston, pick up a picnic-ready charcuterie spread to-go with all the accoutrements: cheeses, crostini, dried fruits, salami and house-made pâtés and rillettes.

COCKTAIL & CHARCUTERIE PAIRINGS

Q&A with JOE CLARKE, Owner/Chef at Vault & Vator, Greenville

► What are some basic flavor pairing rules to keep in mind? Cocktails provide a variety of flavor profiles that are versatile when it comes to pairing. For example, neutral spirits and higher acid cocktails tend to allow the softer cheeses' flavor to come through.

► Do you use any local products for your charcuterie boards? We feature cheese from Blue Ridge Creamery throughout the year. They are local and have several different styles.

PIT STOPS

ROADSIDE BARBECUE WORTH PULLING OVER FOR

The magic of a road trip lies in what you'll discover along the way. In South Carolina, our old country backroads and byways are dotted with hidden gem barbecue joints that cherish old ways of cooking and recipes handed down through generations.

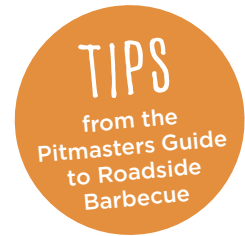

If you're driving down to Charleston, be sure to exit I-26 to try Rodney Scott's Whole Hog BBQ, helmed by James Beard award-winning Chef Rodney Scott, who pit-cooks whole hogs and mops them with a spicy vinegar pepper sauce for divine flavor. At Scott's Bar-B-Que just off Hemingway Highway in Pee Dee Country, pull over to see where the famed chef honed his pit prowess—by helping his parents in their own roadside barbecue joint.

At Anderson's Creekside Bar-Be-Que in The Upcountry, order a plate of beef brisket slow-smoked over pecan and hickory woods. Or if you're following SC-46 or US-278 on your way down south to Hilton Head Island, detour to Bluffton BBQ for a rack of ribs and Southern sides like Brunswick stew and sweet potato casserole.

Hankering for a bit of everything? Take a break from the wheel at a buffet such as Lee's Barbecue & Catering Service on SC-72 in Waterloo or Schuler's BBQ on SC-38 in Latta, where you'll find a full spread of smoked meats and all the down-home sides. Meanwhile, Lone Star Barbecue & Mercantile, just off Old Number Six Highway in Santee, is comprised of several country stores, a buffet, antiques and live bluegrass on weekends.

Local pit pros share their insider tips for finding the best barbecue around.

"My rule of thumb is: I want to hear one place [recommended to me] three times from three different people. There's nothing scientific about it—it just works."

"When I see a place that's total barbecue, not open for breakfast and not in some great big, glitzy, fancy building, I'll stop."

—Norton Hughes, Pit Master & Co-Owner, Shuler's Barbecue, Latta

"I want to see smoke coming over the building. I want to smell it; I want to see it. For barbecue, there needs to be large amounts of smoke. I want to see a big woodpile."

REVITALIZED MAIN STREETS AND DOWNTOWN DISTRICTS

From small town main streets bustling with craft breweries, innovative eateries and boutique hotels to revamped retail districts lined with locally owned shops and cafés, these vibrant thoroughfares are infused with new energy.

CONWAY

Conway began as a hub of trade in the 1700s due to its strategic location on the Waccamaw River. Today, its downtown hub is seeing exciting growth. Meander along the 1.5-mile Conway Riverwalk and stop into Rivertown Roasters on Main for a cup of fair trade, organic coffee roasted onsite. Order globally inspired Southern fare (think Lowcountry spring rolls and Jamaican jerk fried chicken salad) at Rivertown Bistro or Southern-style pub grub at Bo. Co. Bistro (start with the beer cheese nachos piled with pulled pork). Keep an eye out for a new restaurant, brewhouse and retail space currently being built along the riverfront.

GREENVILLE

Explore the 32-acre Falls Park on the Reedy—the location of the new Grand Bohemian Hotel Greenville, a modern take on a traditional park lodge slated to open spring 2022—and continue on to the West End historic district for unique brews at The Whale: A Craft Beer Collective and Hoppin' (a self-serve beer hall), eclectic wines at Urban Wren, prime steaks at Rick Erwin's West End Grille and street food-style bites at Gather GVL.

SUMTER

Booming with new developments, historic North Main Street has become a beacon of revitalization. Dine on Italian-influenced New American dishes at the stylish Hamptons restaurant led by South Carolina Chef Ambassador Raffaele Dall'Erta, or fill up on brisket and bourbon at Sidebar. Then, taste your way through craft beers on the rooftop at Sumter Original Brewery and call it a night at the modern Hyatt Place Sumter/Downtown.

WEST COLUMBIA

HARTSVILLE

Tucked along Prestwood Lake, the town of Hartsville seamlessly blends natural beauty with historic character. Kick off your morning with handmade pancakes or waffles at the recently opened Maxyne's, and then learn the town's story through exhibits at The Hartsville Museum, housed in a 1930s post office. At Wild Heart Brewing, which was once a family feed and seed store, pair a brick oven-fired pizza with a pint of craft beer. GET AWAY FROM THE CROWDS and into your own private retreat with hotels and rentals offering secluded (and special) accommodations, from treehouses amid the forests to cottages steps from the beach.

It doesn't get more picturesque than The Cottages on Charleston Harbor in Mount Pleasant, where you'll find chic waterfront cottages perched on historic Patriots Point. These two-bedroom rentals offer spacious layouts, plus private screened-in porches complete with rocking chairs and a hammock. On Daufuskie Island, call the historic Haig Point Lighthouse your home away from home with a stay-and-play package that includes golf, horseback riding and tennis—or book one of the new cottages slated to open in 2022.

In Spartanburg, stay in a vintage 1947 Southern Rail caboose set amid English-style gardens when you book the MackRail Cabin Car at Clevedale Historic Inn and Gardens. The private deck and landscaped back garden are perfect for enjoying a book or a glass of wine in solitude.

For a getaway to the country, escape to the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains at The Red Horse Inn in Landrum, featuring light, airy cottages with cathedral ceilings, fireplaces and private hot tubs, all minutes from wineries, waterfall hikes and historic covered bridges. Or stay in The Majestic Treehouse, tucked away on a 40-acre farm in Walhalla, with magical touches like chandeliers and an outdoor shower. If a more rugged wilderness excursion is calling your name, paddle 13 miles down a cypress-shaded blackwater river with Carolina Heritage Outfitters, and spend the night in an off-grid treehouse equipped with a propane stove, lanterns and a screened-in sleeping area.

Meanwhile, South Carolina state parks are perfect for waterfront retreats. Bring your whole crew to Devils Fork State Park in Salem to stay in a villa just steps from Lake Jocassee, a rondette-style cabin on Lake Marion at Santee State Park in Santee or a villa by Lake Murray at Dreher Island State Park in Prosperity. The Turner House at St. Phillips Island is part of Hunting Island State Park and is accessible only by boat.

ART AL FRESCO

Brookgreen
Gardens,
Murrells Inlet

Take in some fresh air and sunshine as you explore inspiring artwork on display in the great outdoors, whether you're seeking a peaceful sculpture garden or a vibrant collection of downtown street art.

For art in nature, stroll through the botanical paradise at Brookgreen Gardens in Murrells Inlet to marvel at the country's largest collection of American figurative sculpture, or meander along the nature paths at Bluffton's Palmetto Oaks Sculpture Garden to spot quirky sculptures in bright colors. Discover even more whimsy with the nature-based sculpture program at Clemson's South Carolina Botanical Garden, featuring fairy-like castles and sculptures made from twigs, stones and plants.

Ready to switch to city life? Go on a scavenger hunt of public art pieces using the digital map of the Greenville Public Art Walking Tour, and then stop by Canvas Tower to see the multidimensional mural featuring local educator Pearlie Harris, who helped integrate Greenville County schools. Want to see the world's largest fire hydrant or a sculptural fountain that commemorates Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.? Explore downtown Columbia using the interactive One Columbia Public Art Map to spot these and more than 100 other works. Just off Main Street in Rock Hill, duck into the alleyway known as Freedom Walkway—a commemorative space honoring social justice activists—where you'll find panels about civil rights history, plus mosaics and paintings. In Myrtle Beach, the coastal vibe comes through with eye-catching murals splashed across town, such as the vivid beach scene with a surfer and dolphin on the side of Lulu's Cafe and the marine life-filled "Whaling Wall" on the Myrtle Beach Convention Center.

SC STATE PARKS ARTIST-IN-RESIDENCE PROGRAM

Every year, a small cohort of artists are selected for a week-long stay in a state park cabin to produce an original piece of artwork inspired by the natural and cultural riches of the park. In return, they donate their masterpieces to display in cabins and park facilities for all to enjoy.

PET-FRIENDLY GETAWAYS

When we say bring the whole family, we mean it—and that includes your beloved fur babies. From welcoming hotels and pet friendly patios to scenic nature trails and off-leash parks, South Carolina makes it easy to bring your pooch on vacation.

COLUMBIA

Unpack your bags at the pet-friendly Graduate Columbia and then kick off your trip with margaritas and globally inspired tacos—as well as a special plate from the Puppy Menu—at Publico Kitchen & Tap. At Sesquicentennial State Park, explore the trails and off-leash dog park, and then unwind with craft beers on a patio at River Rat Brewery or Jake's on Devine.

GREENVILLE

Stay in the midst of the action at the pet-friendly Aloft Greenville Downtown, which allows two pets for no extra fees. Start your morning with a walk along the 22-mile Prisma Health Swamp Rabbit Trail, and then swing by The Barkery Bistro for an organic, gourmet dog treat. Let your pup meet some new pals at The Unleashed Dog Bar, featuring an off-leash dog park and a bar with TVs, beers and indoor-outdoor seating.

AIKEN

Bring your pup to revel in luxury at The Willcox Hotel, Restaurant & Spa, and in the morning, enjoy freshly roasted coffee on the patio at The New Moon Café. On Tuesday and Saturday mornings, pick up fresh fruit, boiled peanuts and homemade treats at Aiken County Farmers Market. Then, walk on the 3-mile (on-leash) Jungle Nature Trail at Aiken State Park or explore the many trails (voice command) at Hitchcock Woods.

SPRING In May, paddle the Catawba River or hike the 1.5-mile Canal Trail in Landsford Canal State Park in Catawba to see the largest known stand of Rocky Shoals spider lilies. Or stroll through Swan Lake Iris Gardens—the country's only public park to feature all eight swan species—in Sumter to see more than 120 varieties of iris.

SUMMER Just 30 minutes from South Carolina's capital city, Lake Murray is a glittering jewel of deep-blue waters and more than 650 miles of coastline. Take in its beauty on a sunset cruise, and see swarms of purple martins fill the sky June through August.

FALL Drive the Cherokee Foothills Scenic Highway (South Carolina Highway 11) for spectacular fall foliage and stop at Keowee-Toxaway State Park in Sunset and Table Rock State Park in Pickens along the way. Or perch on the Blue Ridge Escarpment overlook at Caesars Head State Park in Cleveland to watch migrating hawks.

WINTER With its mild winter temperatures, South Carolina is ideal for visiting year-round. Stroll through Charleston's Magnolia Plantation & Gardens, the last large-scale romantic garden in the U.S., to marvel at 20,000 pink, white and red camellias in bloom.

GORGEOUS OUTDOOR WEDDINGS

BY DEVYN WHITMIRE

A wedding tells a story, and each of these South Carolina venues offers a stunning backdrop to the fairytale you have only ever imagined.

Old Wide Awake Plantation

Picture an intimate gathering on the grounds of a private riverside estate, a night aglow with the warm twinkle of lights reflecting off the water's surface. This site in Hollywood has all the makings of a dreamy affair.

Greenbrier Farms

At this family-owned farm in Easley, the pastoral scenery isn't just an aesthetic. Whether you're wed by the waterfront or beneath an oak that's witnessed lifetimes of love stories, let nature's perseverance be a metaphor for your new beginning.

Montage Palmetto Bluff

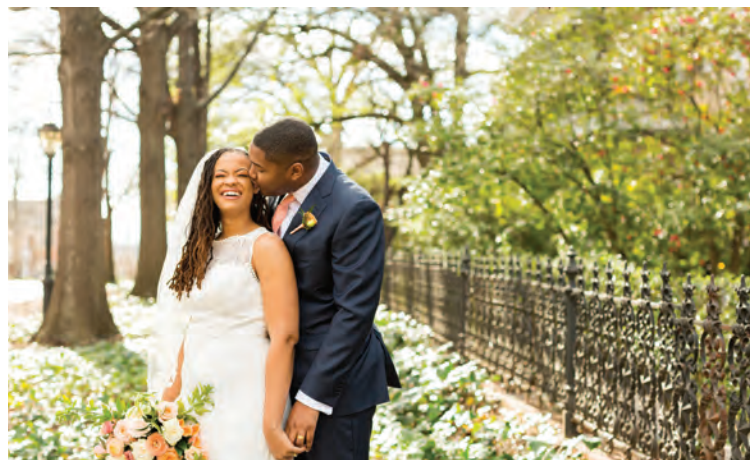

A venue along the May River that exceeds all expectations for a truly memorable celebration, this resort in Bluffton emulates the distinctive magic of the Lowcountry while also offering the exclusivity of a luxury destination.

Hotel Domestique

This one-of-a-kind property in Travelers Rest is one for the storybooks—a marriage of old-world grandeur and contemporary finesse, charmingly nestled amid the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Legare Waring House at Charles Towne Landing

What better place to begin a new life together than where Charleston began? Say "I do" beneath the Spanish moss-laden oaks of Charles Towne Landing, where English settlers arrived in 1670.

The Lace House at Arsenal Hill

A historic home boasting lush gardens and hidden away in the heart of South Carolina's Capital City, the Lace House is as timeless and elegant as its namesake.

SPECTACULAR STATE PARK CAMPGROUNDS

No matter your level of camping expertise, spend the night beneath a canopy of stars and awake to a wondrous landscape when you pitch a tent or park your RV at some of South Carolina's most beautiful campgrounds, from the beaches to the midlands to the mountains.

TENT: CAR-CAMPING

At Oconee State Park in Mountain Rest, unload your gear at your campsite and then explore the 2.3-mile Oconee Trail for lake views and wildlife watching. Hamilton Branch State Park in Plum Branch offers scenic lakefront camping, ideal for anglers looking to cast a line right from camp. Or camp near the beach at Hunting Island State Park to enjoy incredible sunsets, 5 miles of pristine beaches and an observation deck atop a historic lighthouse.

RV: FULL HOOK-UPS

Pull up to your home away from home at Huntington Beach State Park in Murrells Inlet, where RV sites with full hook-ups (plus free Wi-Fi) make outdoor living easy. Once you're settled, go surf fishing or sunbathe on white sand beaches. At Lake Greenwood State Park in Ninety Six, park beneath the shade of pine trees and take in lake views from your RV site.

BACKCOUNTRY

Get a backcountry permit and escape to lush forests at Jones Gap State Park in Marietta, where campsites along the trails offer peaceful solitude. At Keowee-Toxaway State Park in Sunset, bask in the scenery of the Blue Ridge Mountains as you hike Raven Rock Trail to the designated backcountry sites near the shores of Lake Keowee.

BOAT-IN SITES

Rent a canoe or kayak at Salem's Devils Fork State Park and paddle your way to the boat-in backcountry sites nestled among the trees on the northern shore of Lake Jocassee. Or explore cypress wetlands, fish from your boat and then paddle to the boat-in campground on the north side of Lake Juniper at Cheraw State Park.

UNDISCOVERED BEAUTY ON THE BARRIER ISLANDS

LEAVE BEHIND THE CROWDS—and the world as you know it—to escape to the untouched coastal wilderness on South Carolina’s sea islands. Many of these barrier islands can be reached only by boat, and small tours are available to experience the remote beaches, pristine salt marshes and shady tangles of maritime forests.

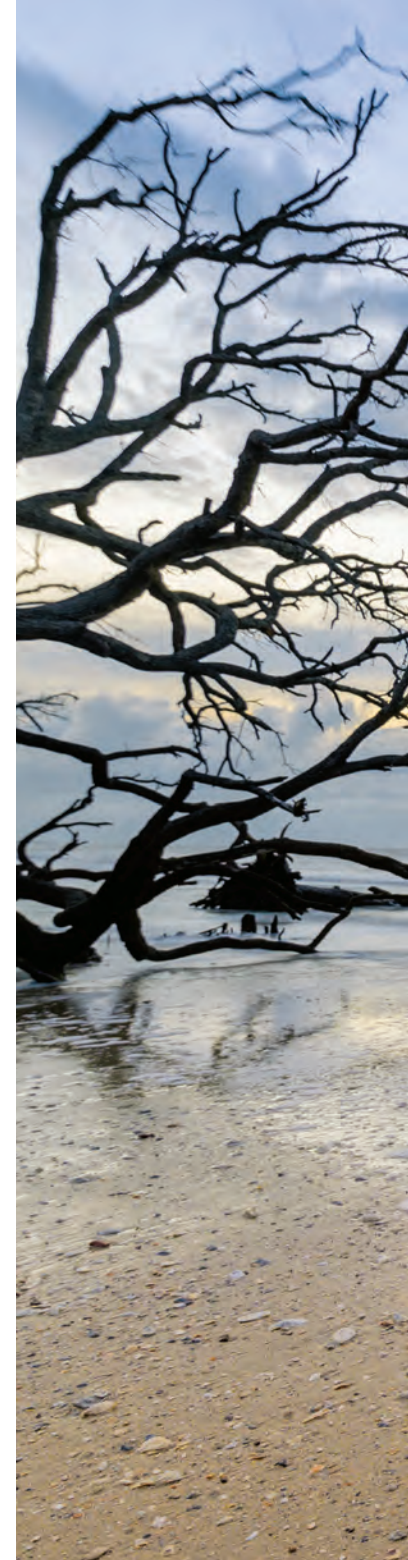

From kayak tours to beach drops, Coastal Expeditions offers numerous excursions to South Carolina’s barrier islands. On the dolphin sightseeing cruise, which departs from Russ Point Boat Landing in Beaufort, you’ll learn about natural history while spotting pods of bottlenose dolphins that play and leap from the waters around Hunting Island State Park. Or venture to the Hunting Island State Park Nature Center to catch the ferry to St. Phillips Island. You’ll glide along the winding Story River surrounded by rippling marsh grasses, ultimately arriving at a remote paradise of ancient dunes, live oaks and Southern magnolia. Another option? Hop on the Bulls Island Ferry from Garris Landing in Awendaw for an ecotour through Cape Romain National Wildlife Refuge—rife with sunbathing alligators, soaring bald eagles and cresting dolphins—before docking at Bulls Island to explore on your own. There, you can hike the nature trails and keep an eye out for hundreds of species of birds.

With Barrier Island Eco Tours, escape to the undeveloped Capers Island Heritage Preserve on a naturalist-guided boat ride to cruise along serene tidal creeks while learning about the area’s ecology and local wildlife. The guide will also employ nets and traps along the way to show you a closer look at some of the creatures that live in the salt marshes, such as shrimp, crabs and clams.

For a horseback ride along white sand beaches, take the ferry to Daufuskie Island to explore the history and scenery of South Carolina’s southernmost sea island with Daufuskie Trail Rides.

Or explore by car when you pick up a free self-guided driving tour guide from the kiosk at Botany Bay Plantation Heritage Preserve on Edisto Island. This 6.5-mile route leads you to Botany Bay Beach—known as “Boneyard Beach”—where erosion left a scraggle of dead trees, their limbs sun-bleached white and lapped smooth by the tides. There are seemingly endless ways to take in South Carolina’s rugged beauty.

TEST YOUR SKILLS ON SC'S CHALLENGING GOLF COURSES

BY PERRY BAKER

Experienced golfers love a course that will rough them up—at least occasionally. And with 350-plus golf courses in South Carolina, there's no shortage of courses that will challenge and exceed your expectations. Put your swing and your skills to the test at these four spots.

THE OCEAN COURSE AT KIAWAH ISLAND GOLF RESORT

The Ocean Course is legendary. Site of the famous “War by the Shore” Ryder Cup in 1991, as well as the 2012 and 2021 PGA Championships, this course is a true test of golf, offering the most seaside holes (10) of any course in the Northern Hemisphere. When the wind blows—and at Kiawah, it always does—golfers will have all they can handle. Pete Dye designed this course with an assist from his wife Alice (who suggested raised fairways for coastline views from every hole).

PRESTWICK COUNTRY CLUB

Prestwick in Myrtle Beach is a Pete and P.B. Dye collaboration that is designed in the classic Scottish tradition. More than 1.3 million yards of earth were moved to create the course’s deep bunkers, steep berms and large sandy areas. Over 7,000 yards in length from the tips, this course will challenge you from tee to green.

HARBOUR TOWN GOLF LINKS – THE SEA PINES RESORT

A classic Pete Dye/Jack Nicklaus design, Harbour Town serves as the only annual South Carolina stop for the PGA TOUR, with the RBC Heritage Presented by Boeing. This picturesque waterfront course, which also happens to be a Certified Audubon Cooperative Sanctuary, calls for precise shot-making, with narrow, tree-lined fairways and the smallest greens on the tour.

MOUNT VINTAGE GOLF CLUB

Offering 27 holes (Vintage Nine, Chester Nine and Independent Nine), the Tom Jackson-designed Mount Vintage in North Augusta has been deemed a “magnificent layout” by golf icon Byron Nelson. With rolling hills and treacherous greens, golfers will be challenged to make a score close to par for their round. The demanding 5th, 6th and 7th holes around Pavilion Lake have been called the “Amen Corner” of Mount Vintage.

MORE COURSES WORTH NOTING

Caledonia

Mike Strantz’s Caledonia course at Caledonia Golf & Fish Club in Pawleys Island will win over your heart with a challenging design that requires straight drives and a deft touch around the greens.

Wild Dunes Links Course

Architect Tom Fazio claims this design is one of his favorites. Just outside of Charleston, half of the holes on the course run along the Intracoastal Waterway, so you might just need to bring along a few extra balls.

Dunes Club

Robert Trent Jones designed this oceanside layout in Myrtle Beach decades ago, and it still stands as a top course. The signature Par 5 13th hole, known as Waterloo, is legendary for tempting players into attempting a (sometimes disastrous) shot over water.

May River

Weaving its way through majestic live oaks of the Lowcountry, Jack Nicklaus’ May River in Bluffton will penalize any wayward shot off the tee, with greens that are slick and punishing. Still, you would be hard-pressed to find a prettier spot for a golf course.

HERITAGE

Discover revolutionary history and defining moments that tell the complex story of South Carolina. At historic sites, battlefields and museums, you'll learn how distinctive cultures came together to shape the colony and eventually the state. From the indigenous people who helped settlers find high ground in the Lowcountry, to the Gullah Geechee who built an economy using skilled techniques, and the Patriots who birthed a new nation, people of the past wrote a story that is broad, compelling and appealing.

AN AMERICAN HISTORY LESSON

MUST-SEE MUSEUMS

You can't tell the story of America without including tales from the Palmetto State. Immerse yourself in different facets of the country's fascinating past—as well as stories and cultures that are unique to South Carolina—at these museums.

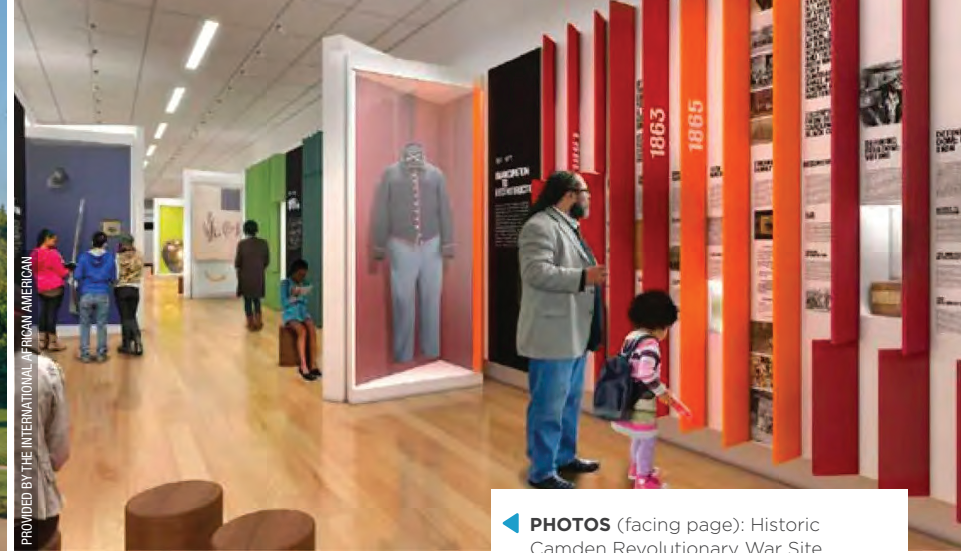

AFRICAN AMERICAN HERITAGE

Slated to open fall 2022, the International African American Museum in Charleston shines a light on the history of African Americans. You'll learn about the state's role in the transatlantic slave trade and Civil War, as well as the vital contributions of both enslaved Africans and free Blacks to the economic and cultural development of the country. Continue your education at the Mann-Simons Site, which tells the inspiring story of a freed couple who essentially walked from Charleston to Columbia and established a home, several businesses and a thriving community for fellow African Americans. At the Dr. Benjamin E. Mays Historic Site in Greenwood, visit the childhood home of this legendary historic figure, who was born the son of a sharecropper and ultimately became a Baptist minister, civil rights trailblazer and the president of Morehouse College.

GULLAH HERITAGE

Experience the culture of the Gullah Geechee people, descendants of enslaved Africans who were transported to South Carolina's sea and barrier islands to labor on rice, indigo and cotton plantations. See the historic "Little Blue House," which holds the museum collection of The Gullah Museum of Hilton Head Island or watch presentations on Gullah and Lowcountry crafts and agricultural methods at the Gullah Museum in Georgetown. On St. Helena Island, stroll the 50-acre National Historic Landmark District of the Penn Center—founded in 1862 as a school for formerly enslaved Africans—featuring historic structures, cottages and a gift shop. During the 1960s, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. made several visits to the Penn Center, where he drafted the early words of his immortal “I Have a Dream” speech.

NATIVE AMERICAN HISTORY

For thousands of years before Europeans arrived in North America, indigenous tribes lived on the land now known as South Carolina. Learn about these ancient civilizations at several museums, such as Walhalla’s Museum of the Cherokee in South Carolina, which tells the history of this agricultural tribe that settled in established villages throughout northwestern South Carolina, growing corn, beans and squash, as well as tending to orchards. Meanwhile, the Catawba Cultural Center in Rock Hill preserves the culture of the Catawba people through its pow wows, storytelling and tribal craft classes such as beading and basket weaving. At Charles Towne Landing State Historic Site in Charleston, an exhibit explains how the Kiawah helped settlers find high ground at Albermarle Point to stave off conflicts long enough to develop the state’s first permanent settlement.

STORIES OF STATEHOOD

How did South Carolina come to be what it is today? At Columbia’s South Carolina State Museum, the state’s storyline spans prehistoric times with dinosaur exhibits and fossils, Revolutionary War and Civil War displays, and modern-day art and technology. You also can chart the history of the state through maps, photographs and drawings at Charleston’s grand South Carolina Historical Society Museum.

AMERICAN REVOLUTION

As one of the 13 colonies seeking independence from Great Britain, South Carolina was a major player in the Revolutionary War, with more than 200 battles and skirmishes fought on its lands. Start your journey at the Revolutionary War Visitor Center at Camden, which highlights the state’s role in the turning point of the war. Then, see the reconstructed Kershaw-Cornwallis House & Gardens and visit the forested site of the devastating 1780 Battle of Camden at the Camden Battlefield and Longleaf Pine Preserve. In Blacksburg, relive an important American victory—dubbed “the turn of the tide of success” by Thomas Jefferson—at Kings Mountain National Military Park, where you can peruse the museum exhibits, watch a live-action film and walk the 1.5-mile battlefield trail.

EXPLORING SOUTH CAROLINA'S OFFICIAL STATE MUSIC

SPIRITUAL AWAKENING

BY CELE & LYNN SELDON

Ann Caldwell
and the Magnolia
Singers, Charleston

As an adjective, spiritual relates to the human spirit or soul. As a noun, however, it's a type of song that plays an integral role in the cultural fabric of South Carolina.

HISTORY

Thought to have been brought over in the 19th century by enslaved Africans arriving in Charleston, the spiritual is typically sung acapella in an African singing style known as “call-and-response.” The music—often sung in the Gullah dialect—is accompanied by various forms of percussion, including hand clapping and foot stomping, and is described as “plantation songs” that often tell the story of suffering and survival. Different than gospel, which is more of a 20th-century genre of Christian music, spirituals have been passed down orally for generations, and continue to preserve the Gullah culture of the Lowcountry. In 1999, the spiritual became South Carolina's official state music.

KEEPING THE TRADITION ALIVE

The spiritual has been kept alive by groups that preserve or perform this homage to their Gullah roots. The Plantation Singers of Charleston was founded in 1996 as an acapella and percussion singing group and can be heard most Sundays at the Gospel Brunch at Hall's Chophouse in downtown Charleston, as well as national and international concerts and performances.

Ann Caldwell and the Magnolia Singers is another acapella group that performs spirituals, Gullah poetry and storytelling that bring the spirit and spirits of their Gullah ancestors to life. More recently, spirituals have taken center stage as the Charleston-based, Gullah-rooted quintet, Ranky Tanky, released their debut album, Ranky Tanky, in 2017 and subsequently won a Grammy Award for Best Regional Roots Album for their 2019 release, Good Time.

SCAVENGER HUNT

UNCOVERING UNIQUE TRADITIONS AND ICONS OF THE PALMETTO STATE

BY CELE & LYNN SELDON
ILLUSTRATED BY TERESANNE COSSETTA RUSSELL

Cultural customs, centuries-old traditions and superstitious icons tell the history of the state in the most unlikely places—but not if you know where to look.

Others would try to rid their homes of evil spirits or “haints” painting their porch ceilings haint blue.

Legend has it that ghosts can’t cross water, so the blue-green color would confuse the spirits into thinking they can’t enter.

Many of the state’s traditions are rooted in superstitions brought to the Lowcountry by enslaved Africans and then maintained by the area’s Gullah Geechee community. The blue bottle tree came about as nature’s talisman to ward against evil spirits, with the theory being that the spirits would be attracted to the colorful bottles and wander into them. They would then get trapped and be destroyed by the morning light, or simply corked and thrown away.

Hospitality is also a fundamental tradition, and icons of the state's graciousness can be found on every corner. The humble pineapple—once considered a rare and luxurious fruit—is now often used as the quintessential symbol of hospitality and a warm welcome on front porches, entryways and as the centerpiece on the dining table.

The iconic South Carolina emblem—a palmetto and crescent symbol—can also be found everywhere, from housewares to Christmas ornaments.

Created from the indigo blue uniforms of the Revolutionary War's militia and the crescent of their cap insignia, the palmetto was added after the defense of Sullivan's Island during the Civil War and, today, represents a deep-seated South Carolina pride.

Another symbol of geniality found on many tables is the unassuming glass of sweet tea, which traces its roots back to Summerville, known as the Birthplace of Sweet Tea. Served in a proper iced tea glass with ice and a slice of lemon, the sugary and refreshing beverage is truly a taste of South Carolina.

Mirrors on porches are another way to ward off demons. The belief is, since the devil can only enter at night and must return to hell at daybreak, they will spend the entire night looking at themselves in the mirror and forget to spread their evil before sunrise.

THE ROAD TO HIGHER EDUCATION

GET A HISTORY LESSON AT SOUTH CAROLINA'S HISTORICALLY BLACK COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES

BY MARIE MCADEN

The end of the Civil War signified a dramatic shift within the United States, as millions of newly emancipated African Americans finally were able to enjoy personal freedoms, economic prospects and geographic and social mobility previously denied to them.

Education became an important step in this transition, and Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) were established during the Reconstruction era to provide freedmen educational opportunities, as higher educational institutions still catered only to white students. Claflin University in Orangeburg became South Carolina's first HBCU, established in 1869.

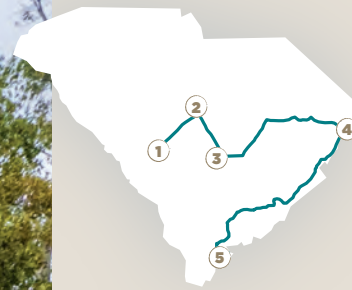

Despite this progress, much work had yet to be done—even a century after slavery ended. HBCUs also played a critical role in the civil rights movement during the 1950s and '60s, staging sit-ins and protest marches. In one pivotal demonstration that would become an important legal case in civil rights struggles around the country, 187 students were arrested at the State House. Among them was U.S. Congressman Jim Clyburn, a South Carolina State University student now serving as the third-ranking Democrat in Congress.

South Carolina's HBCUs have not only fostered a nurturing environment for students to explore their cultural identity, but they have also helped create a vibrant class of Black professionals, administrators and business owners in the state. HBCUs' rich legacy of education, service and support remains integral to Black advancement today.

Road Trip

Set off on a cultural journey following "The Green Book of South Carolina," a travel guide to more than 400 African American cultural sites across the state, featuring themed road trip routes. On this course, learn how five historic schools and HBCUs in South Carolina helped provide generations of African Americans a pathway to a better life through higher education.

1 START

Immanuel School, Aiken

Built in 1889 in the late Victorian architectural style, the privately funded parochial school educated African American children in the Aiken area until it closed during the Great Depression. It now serves as the Center for African American History, Art & Culture.

2 56 MILES

Allen University Historic District and Benedict College, Columbia

Standing side by side, these two institutions of higher learning were founded by religious organizations in 1870 and feature picturesque campuses with a number of buildings listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

3 45 MILES

Claflin University, Orangeburg

A top-tier HBCU and the oldest in the state, Claflin was founded by Methodist missionaries in 1869 to educate freedmen after the Civil War, initially providing basic grammar school education and training for teachers.

4 140 MILES

Myrtle Beach Colored School, Myrtle Beach

Thanks to the efforts of its former students, the circa 1930s six-room building—the first public school for African Americans in Myrtle Beach—was rebuilt in 2006 and now serves as a museum and educational center.

5 221 MILES

Cherry Hill School, Hilton Head Island

The first separate school building constructed for African American students on Hilton Head Island, this one-room frame elementary school was built by Beaufort County circa 1937 after the Black community raised the money to buy the property.

HISTORIC CHARLESTON & RESORT ISLANDS

As one of the country's most beautifully preserved architectural treasures, the historic city of Charleston features cobblestone streets, pastel mansions with lacy wrought iron balconies, homes turned museums and grand hotels. Just outside downtown, award-winning golf courses overlook the Atlantic Ocean, stately plantations hold centuries of stories, and the laid-back sea islands beckon with sandy beaches and casual dock-and-dine eateries.

From the Heart

The history of the past is important. At Boone Hall, the difference is in how that history is presented. In a time of soul searching and reflection, Boone Hall remains committed to telling the full story.

Recognized as the #1 Plantation in the Charleston Area by USA TODAY 10BEST

The door opens and out steps a lady whose distinguished presence and grace draws all eyes her way.

The entrance is symbolic, as the history of the past is brought forward to present day through one-of-a-kind live presentations.

“Exploring The Gullah Culture” allows visitors to experience history differently. Boone Hall is the only plantation in the Charleston area to present dramatic live presentations of this unique culture adapted by enslaved Africans.

True descendants of the Gullah people present the history of this culture through storytelling, song, and dance that is at times educational, at times entertaining, and at times...very moving and emotional.

These Gullah ladies share uplifting spiritual messages that project love and understanding about the hardships of the past in relationship to where they are today.

“We must leave the divisiveness of the past behind in order to move forward and claim the future.”

*Miss Gloria Ford
Gullah Program Presenter*

“Exploring The Gullah Culture” is part of the critically acclaimed “Black History In America” exhibit that is on display as part of the tour experience at Boone Hall Plantation.

CAPITAL CITY LAKE MURRAY COUNTRY

From enclaves of art galleries and the energetic nightlife districts of South Carolina's capital city, to nature trails winding through old-growth forests and lakefront adventures—plus three scenic rivers running through it all—this region seamlessly blends big-city culture and outdoor pursuits. See where historic buildings are living new lives as trendy restaurants and breweries, and where quiet tree-lined streets lead you through welcoming neighborhoods.

LOWCOUNTRY & RESORT ISLANDS

The hectic pace of life seems to slow down when you head to the Lowcountry, where Spanish moss-draped oak trees and wild marshlands set the scene for relaxation. Here, fishing, sailing, kayaking, hunting and sunset watching are common pastimes. Bike along the beachfront trails and beneath the shade of subtropical maritime forests, tee off on iconic golf courses, fill up on Gullah-inspired soul food and stay in historic mansions turned into B&Bs.

OLD 96 DISTRICT

Charming small towns dot the rural landscape of this region, where you'll find freshwater lakes, state parks and Revolutionary War battle sites—all just minutes from historic downtown areas, community theaters and 1800s mansions converted into museums. Take a leisurely drive through the pastoral landscapes and along the way, pull over at rustic farm stands and U-pick berry fields.

PEE DEE COUNTRY

Named for the area's first residents—the Pee Dee Indian Tribe—this region is rich with the natural beauty of the outdoors: free-flowing rivers, wildlife-filled swamplands and blooming gardens. Time travel at Revolutionary and Civil War sites, stroll through architecturally diverse historic districts and learn about the area's agrarian past at tobacco and cotton farms and museums.

SANTEE COOPER COUNTRY

From boating the wide-open waters of the “Great Lakes of South Carolina” to paddling between cypress and tupelo trees in blackwater creeks, this region attracts anglers, boaters, birdwatchers and swimmers alike. During the day, take your pick from golf courses, nature trails, historic battlegrounds and woodlands hunting, and at night, discover low-key eateries and cultural gems in small towns.
