Welcome to South Carolina

On behalf of the citizens of South Carolina, I'd like to welcome you to the Palmetto State and invite you to explore everything our state has to offer. Hospitality is part of our heritage here, and so are good food, beautiful places and smiling faces.

Our rich cultural heritage, abundant wildlife and our majestic beaches and mountains make South Carolina a destination like no other. We couldn't be happier to have you here with us.

Yours very truly,

Henry McMaster
Governor of South Carolina

UPCOUNTRY

South Carolina's Upcountry region is one of natural beauty, outdoor adventures, and intriguing history. Follow the Cherokee Foothills National Scenic Byway for a taste of all of these features. Begin your journey at Cowpens National Battlefield where a critical battle of the American Revolution was won by the Patriot forces. Driving west you'll soon see peach orchards and strawberry fields before the road goes from flat to rolling. You're now beginning to see the Blue Ridge Mountain Range. Stop at roadside stands for peaches, strawberries, apples, or boiled peanuts. Take side trips to see rushing waterfalls, state parks, sparkling lakes, streams & rivers, and scenic view sheds. UpcountrySC.com

LAKE HARTWELL COUNTRY

Lake Hartwell Country is an angler's paradise. Lake Jocassee, Lake Keowee, and Lake Hartwell are teeming with trout and bass, and rivers like the Chattooga, the Chauga, and the Eastatoee provide world-class fly-fishing experiences. There is no shortage of fishing waters in the region. Bass is king, Lake Hartwell now hosts four Bassmaster Classics, and Lake Keowee is home to some of the most crystal-clear waters and stunning views in the state. But you cannot forget Lake Jocassee, an undeveloped mountain lake where state-record trout roam. Add in one of the top fly-fishing waters east of the Mississippi on the Wild and Scenic Chattooga River, and you've found your home. LakeHartwellCountry.com

THOROUGHBRED COUNTRY

Longing for a change of pace? Thoroughbred Country offers an array of opportunities for outdoor enthusiasts. Grab your kayak and fish along the South Fork of the Edisto River, a natural cathedral of hardwoods and cypress, home to pinfish, catfish, eels, largemouth bass, and the occasional alligator. Boat or perch on the Savannah River where beautiful scenery and abundant oxbows provide excellent fishing of hardy nutrient-rich fish. Don't forget to check out the lakes at Aiken and Barnwell State Parks for a relaxing stay-and-play experience. In addition to fishing, this region has a variety of hunting, camping, disc golf, and equestrian activities to choose from. We're Way More than Horses! TBredCountry.org

OLD 96 DISTRICT

The Old 96 District offers easy lake access and a variety of different fishing experiences and backdrops. Calhoun Falls State Park sits along several pine-covered points extending out into sparsely-developed Lake Russell, which hosts many annual fishing tournaments. If bass fishing and catfish events pique your interest, then Lake Greenwood is a popular option to cast your line across the 11,400-acre lake. Outside the stillness of the woods at Baker Creek State Park sits Lake Thurmond, a 71,100-acre lake. This lake offers easy fishing access and is also home to Hickory Knob State Resort Park one of the best state park resorts in the southeast. Here you will find great fishing along with cabins, a lodge, a restaurant, and a bar. VisitOld96SC.com

OLDE ENGLISH DISTRICT

Natural beauty surrounds South Carolina's waterways, and the Olde English District offers many adventures for a variety of water enthusiasts, from the leisurely angler to the seasoned kayaker. Drift beside blooming Rocky Shoals Spider Lilies at Landsford Canal in May and June for an exciting excursion. Rent a canoe at Cheraw State Park to experience the cypress wetlands of Lake Juniper or at Goodale State Park to paddle through a scenic forest. If the lake life is more your speed, opt for a visit to one of the many larger bodies of water in the region, including Lake Wateree, Lake Wylie, and Lake Monticello. It's time to break out your paddles or fishing pole and begin your water-bound adventure. OldeEnglishDistrict.com

CAPITAL CITY/LAKE MURRAY COUNTRY

Capital City/Lake Murray Country is an angler's paradise and a world fishing destination! With over 650 miles of shoreline, Lake Murray is home to the best freshwater fishing in the world. The Lake has broken numerous bass fishing records over the years and most recently was the first US location to host the XVI Black Bass World Championship. Bassmaster recently named Lake Murray #1 bass fishing lake in the Southeast and #4 in the USA. Lake Murray Country hosts many regional events and tournaments throughout the year - featuring fishing enthusiasts catching largemouth bass, striped bass, crappie, catfish, and bluegill. Visitors love getting on the water with our talented local fishing guides to learn the latest in fishing trends and tips. LakeMurrayCountry.com

PEE DEE REGION

The Pee Dee Region of South Carolina offers food, fishing, hiking, bird watching, camping and all the outdoor adventures you could imagine. We have the Big and Little Pee Dee Rivers, Lynchies River, and Black River which all are known for their natural beauty, fishing, and kayaking. Travel the 66 mile stretch of black water tributaries known as the Revolutionary Rivers National Recreation Trail ending up near Snow's Island, Francis Marion's secretive headquarters. We also have three State Parks; Lee State Park, Little Pee Dee, and Woods Bay. After a day on one of our rivers or parks try some of the Pee Dee's great BBQ that we are also known for. For more information go to PeeDeeTourism.com

MYRTLE BEACH & THE GRAND STRAND

There are no limits on the types of fishing in the Myrtle Beach area, from the pier to deep-sea charter fishing, saltwater to freshwater, and inland fishing. The Myrtle Beach area is home to several piers, with excellent Spanish mackerel and bluefish fishing, and 60 miles of beaches, perfect for casting a line from the shore. Freshwater fishing includes catfish, bass, and more. Hop aboard a deep-sea charter and catch sea bass at a whole new level. Several restaurants will also cook your catch! Murrells Inlet, one of the 14 Grand Strand communities, is the "Seafood Capital of South Carolina," with fishing and shrimp boats bringing fresh catches to restaurants throughout Myrtle Beach for a true hook-to-plate experience. VisitMyrtleBeach.com

HISTORIC CHARLESTON & RESORT ISLANDS

A destination on the coast, surrounded by salt marshes, tidal creeks, and the Atlantic Ocean, the Charleston area's abundance of activities offers something for everyone. Kayak with dolphins on Shem Creek, cast your line from a pier, book an offshore fishing charter, or dive into the Lowcountry's culinary scene with fresh seafood on almost every menu. Whether you're looking for the next family excursion or opting for a more laid-back getaway, there are endless opportunities to take in those sweeping views and salty breezes that Charleston and its surrounding beaches have to offer. Santee Cooper Country

Santee Cooper Country is home to the largest lake system in South Carolina. Lake Marion and Lake Moultrie, Santee Cooper lakes, cover 171,000 acres of freshwater. The Santee Cooper lakes consistently rank as a top 20 best fishing lakes by Bassmaster. These lakes proudly hold several state records including the Arkansas Blue Catfish - 113.8 lbs. and Largemouth Bass - 16.2 lbs. The lakes vary from shallow swamps and blackwater ponds to vast open water with an abundance of underwater structures or fish habitats. The lakes do not freeze over in the winter making them available for fun all year long. SanteeCooperCountry.org

LOWCOUNTRY

The cliché "a sportsman's paradise" is often used to lure fishermen. In our SC Lowcountry, we have the bounty to affirm that claim. With upwards of 20 marinas, 56 boat ramps, 6 fishing piers, and 14 artificial reefs, it offers solid year-round fishing for freshwater species including largemouth bass, crappie, bluegill, redbreast, and trophy catfish. Our marshes and estuaries showcase renowned, fast-paced action for prized inshore species including seatrout, redfish, and flounder. Offshore bounty is plentiful. Commonly captains make short work of dolphin, king mackerel, snapper, grouper, tuna, wahoo, and more. Come choose from dozens of creeks & rivers, a beautiful little lake, or a great big ocean. If variety and versatility are your goals, we have it all! SouthCarolinaLowcountry.com

A ROAD TRIP TO IGNITE YOUR APPETITE

DARIUS RUCKER FANS THE FLAMES OF YOUR APPETITE WITH THIS LIST OF SOUTH CAROLINA FAVORITES

BY LIBBY WIERSEMA

Darius Rucker might have sampled all kinds of delicious delicacies across the country during his 2023 Starting Fires Tour, but when it comes to road trip food stops, he carries a torch for South Carolina. The three-time Grammy-winning superstar, big-hearted philanthropist and proud Charleston native has spent a lifetime dining all over the Palmetto State and is always adding to his list of favorites. Here, he shares some of his hottest picks, from upscale dining rooms to casual cafes to down-home dives.

Photos: (from top) Darius Rucker, Greenville; CAMP, Greenville

JAY ADAMS, VISITGREENVILLE

Greenville

1 START IN GREENVILLE

CAMP, Greenville

This bistro distinguishes itself by serving a globally inspired menu in contemporary spaces (chef's counter, modern dining room, sleek bar, pretty patios and rooftop bar) for a one-of-a-kind dining experience.

Hot Pick: Pork & shrimp dumplings with salsa macha (spicy, nutty salsa from Veracruz, Mexico), peanut, cilantro

Chicora Alley Restaurant & Bar, Travelers Rest

The sparks are always flying at this airy restaurant-bar-coffee shop operating in a former firehouse. Southern-Caribbean dishes, live music and its proximity to the Swamp Rabbit Trail make it one of the liveliest eateries in town.

Hot Pick: Shrimp & grits topped with jerk shrimp, roasted red pepper cream sauce, bacon and mango salsa

Bobby's BBQ, Fountain Inn

Darius Rucker's love for barbecue is no secret, so it's no surprise this local icon landed on our list. Self-taught pitmaster Tay Nelson has put the town of Fountain Inn on the smoked meat map with his brisket, pulled pork, ribs, turkey, sausage and line of seasoning blends.

Hot Pick: Toss-up between brisket and house-made sausage

Columbia

2 103 MILES FROM GREENVILLE

DiPrato's Delicatessen, Columbia

This neighborhood gem—just off the beaten downtown path—is part Southern cafe, part Italian bistro, part New York deli. Its luscious lunches and breezy brunches are renowned. Think gooey paninis, crisp salads, juicy corned beef, and benedicts with rich hollandaise.

Hot Pick: Smoked gouda and bacon pimento cheese with fresh-fried pita chips

Terra, West Columbia

Local producers get top billing on Chef Mike Davis' farm-to-table menu chockful of fresh flavors. Dishes are creatively and expertly executed to impress guests—and you will be among them.

Hot Pick: Grilled Carolina Heritage Farms pork chop

Bernie's Chicken, Columbia

Welcome to the fried chicken joint of choice for legions of locals.

A University of South Carolina alumnus and Gamecocks fan, Rucker loves its proximity to Williams-Brice Stadium. Tailgating doesn't get more delicious or convenient than that.

Hot Pick: Fried chicken with crinkle-cut fries, slaw and a side of baked beans

Grand Strand

3 152 MILES FROM COLUMBIA

SeaBlue Restaurant & Wine Bar, North Myrtle Beach

Contemporary American cuisine meets classic French at SeaBlue, which showcases South Carolina's coastal bounty plus expertly prepared steaks, lamb and duck.

Hot Pick: Pan-seared crab cakes with arugula, Dijon aioli, lemon and extra virgin olive oil

Big Mike's Soul Food, Myrtle Beach

Big Mike Chestnut uses his mother's original recipes to create meat-and-three plates that are generously laden and infused with Southern flavor. Don't forget the cornbread and sweet tea.

Hot Pick: Toss up: collard greens or peach cobbler

Johnny D's Waffles and Benedicts, North Myrtle Beach, Myrtle Beach, Surfside Beach

Delicious benedicts, buttery pancake stacks, fresh egg platters and all the extras—home fries, grits, biscuits—get elevated treatment, thanks to proprietor Jamie Daskalis, a South Carolina Chef Ambassador.

Hot Pick: Red velvet waffle drizzled with cream cheese icing, topped with cinnamon sugar and butter

Charleston

4 99 MILES FROM GRAND STRAND

FIG, Downtown

Every dish served at this dining icon honors the Lowcountry's unique culinary heritage. Darius has made no secret of his affinity for FIG (an acronym for Food is Good) and lauds its use of locally sourced ingredients. James Beard Award-winning Chef Mike Lata doesn't just strive for excellence—he epitomizes it.

Hot Pick: Ricotta gnocchi alla Bolognese

Rodney Scott's Whole Hog BBQ, Upper King

Named "Best Chef: Southeast 2018" by the James Beard Foundation, renowned pitmaster Rodney Scott keeps the whole-hog traditions of South Carolina alive and smoldering at his aromatic barbecue joint. Follow your nose and experience the magic of cooking low and slow.

Hot Pick: Whole hog pulled pork slathered in Scott's signature vinegar-pepper sauce

Bowens Island, Charleston

Heaps of freshly roasted local oysters, Frogmore stew (a.k.a. Lowcountry boil), and straight-off-the-boat shrimp served in rustic surroundings on the water's edge create a laid-back, ultra-local dining experience at this James Beard American Classic eatery.

Hot Pick: Oysters, fried or roasted on the half-shell

Kaminsky's Dessert Café, Downtown

End your night in Charleston the Darius way. Head to Kaminsky's near the Charleston Market, where you'll find a mind-boggling selection of decadent sweets, all made fresh daily. From cheesecakes and layer cakes to pies and cobblers to milkshakes and sundaes, indulge in your favorite or discover a new one.

Hot Pick: Coconut cake

Hilton Head Island

5 98 MILES FROM CHARLESTON

Annie O's Kitchen, Hilton Head Island

Southern dishes, conscientiously prepared—that's the calling card of this casual eatery, which uses all-natural ingredients, free-range chicken, grass-fed beef and wild-caught, sustainable seafood.

Hot Pick: Chicken n' dumplings with pulled white and dark meat, biscuit dumplings and vegetables in a light, saucy base

The Crazy Crab, Jarvis Creek

From the menu to the views, the Lowcountry takes the spotlight here. Traditional oyster roasts, Lowcountry boil and fresh shrimp and fish are all part of the magic here, as are the stunning sunsets and marsh views.

Hot Pick: She-crab soup with a basket of hush puppies

Nectar Farm Kitchen, Bluffton

This farm-to-table spot fits in just right with historic Old Town Bluffton charm. Brunch is a special occasion here, so sit back, slow down and savor it all with a Farmhouse Bloody Mary.

Hot Pick: Lowcountry fried bird, a buttermilk biscuit, fried chicken breast and poached egg sandwich drizzled with sawmill gravy

Now that your appetite is fully involved and burning for a taste of South Carolina, go ahead and blame Darius Rucker. Fires might not start themselves (as he croons in his new hit song), but this one can easily be contained. So come on down and experience the time-honored culinary traditions of South Carolina.

SC BBQ Trail
 Make your mouth water: Explore the SC BBQ Trail by region, then come get a taste for yourself.

HERE IN THE PALMETTO STATE, PITMASTERS ARE TAKING TIME-HONORED TECHNIQUES AND PUTTING THEIR OWN SPIN ON OLD TRADITIONS.

If you've been cooking since the age of 11, chances are you'll find yourself creating new concoctions before long—and that's exactly what happened with the James Beard Award-winning Rodney Scott. Rodney Scott's Whole Hog BBQ serves up the classics in Charleston alongside starters like crispy pig skins in housemade rub and sides like a baked potato loaded with your choice of meat.

Speaking of new creations, how about barbecue with a Puerto Rican twist? That's the taste of Palmira Barbecue, also in Charleston, where Hector Garate uses modern techniques to put a twist on mouthwatering classics, resulting in menu items like arroz con gandules and pionono sausage.

Move from Puerto Rican to vegan at Wholy Smoke in Mauldin, which is heavy on the meats as well as the alternatives, like a jackfruit sandwich, meatless wings and even vegan pulled barbecue—and believe it or not, more than half of the 22 sides on its menu are vegan, too.

Vegan is on the menu at Bobby's BBQ in Fountain Inn, too, but here the jackfruit comes in tacos (or you can opt for pulled pork, brisket or turkey tacos). The jalapeño cheddar sausage is a favorite, as is the cheesy potato casserole topped with perfectly salty Ritz crackers.

At Smoking Butt Heads BBQ in Greenville, a spinoff of its owners' successful competition team, the flavors come in the form of egg rolls filled with collards, cream cheese, brisket and raspberry chipotle, as well as the Frog Man sandwich: prime brisket topped with provolone, beer-battered onion rings and SBH's sweet sauce. Prefer pork? Get the Frog Hog.

Who doesn't love barbecue favorites like fall-apart ribs, juicy brisket ... and Carolina Korean cheesesteak? That award-winning sandwich isn't the only surprise on the menu at Roy's Grille in Irmo, where you can savor SC Chef Ambassador Chris Williams' housemade tortilla chips and queso blanco with pulled pork or blackened chicken—and, of course, the house barbecue sauce.

A TWIST ON THE TRADITIONAL

BUZZ-WORTHY BARBECUE SPOTS
 MODERNIZE THE CLASSICS

The Pot Smoker BBQ has locations in Aiken and North Augusta, where it smokes mushroom caps for vegetarians and crispy wings for carnivores. Follow it up with something sweet: a Bomb Diggity Brownie, pound cake or buttermilk pie.

When you're in Pendleton (one of its four locations), stop into The Smokin' Pig for barbecue hot dogs topped with pork, coleslaw and a tangy mustard sauce with a side of jalapeño cheddar grits or Brunswick stew.

Texas meets South Carolina at Lewis Barbecue in Charleston and Greenville, where pitmaster John Lewis is cooking up "Texas hot guts" sausage (beefy, with a bit of pork and a hint of heat) and offering sides like cowboy pinto beans made with Tex-Mex spice and a green chile corn pudding. Daily specials range from smoked pork belly to Lewis' own Reuben.

More menu items that remind you of home can be found at Big Mike's Soul Food in Myrtle Beach, where classics like fried chicken and fish are complemented by fluffy croissant beignets and a collard green dip—and that's just for starters. Look for barbecue ribs and barbecue pig feet select days of the week.

CLASSIC BBQ JOINTS

Carolina BBQ, Spartanburg

A hickory smoke of up to 16 hours, then a dip in its Lexington-style red sauce makes the chopped barbecue pork the most popular dish here. Follow it up with the banana pudding—it's a must when it's on the menu.

More of a purist when it comes to your 'cue? We've rounded up these tried-and-true spots serving up Southern favorites—and, of course, sweet tea.

Shuler's BBQ, Latta

With its fan-favorite buffet (here affectionally called "eat 'til ya hurt!" instead of all-you-can-eat), this institution hit the map after appearing on CNBC's The Profit. Pile your plate with lima beans, sweet potato soufflé and, of course, smoked meats.

Roger's Bar-B-Que House, Florence

Love for the ingredients as well as the diners they serve is what keeps the people behind Roger's going. Taste it in their fried okra, squash casserole and other sides piled high on barbecue, chicken bog or seafood dinner plates.

Midway BBQ, Buffalo

The "hash and chicken stew capital of the world" is where you'll find the lone remaining hash house in Union County, serving up beef hash all week alongside chicken, pork and other favorites.

Farm Boy's Barbecue, Chapin

Secret family recipes are a staple in the South, and the catfish stew at Farm Boy's is a prime example of this time-honored tradition. Here, hush puppies count as a bread, so load up on chicken, ribs, pulled pork and sides like stewed tomatoes.

How many have you tried?

ICONIC SC DISHES

YOU MAY HAVE NEVER HEARD OF SOME OF THESE ICONIC—AND SOMETIMES UNUSUAL-SOUNDING—SOUTH CAROLINA DISHES, BUT ONCE YOU HAVE A TASTE, YOU WON'T BE ABLE TO GET ENOUGH OF THEM.

1 PIMENTO CHEESE

This vibrant spread of shredded cheddar cheese, mayonnaise and bits of pimento peppers makes all kinds of appearances: slathered on burgers, scooped up with crackers, dolloped on fried green tomatoes and even sandwiched on its own between sliced bread.

2 CHICKEN BOG

A soupy (boggy, if you will) dish of tender chicken, smoked sausage and Carolina Gold rice, all simmered together in a rich, from-scratch chicken stock and herbs, this hearty comfort dish is a classic.

3 TOMATO PIE

This savory summertime pie showcases sun-ripened tomatoes sliced and layered with sauteed sweet onion, fresh basil, cheddar and Parmesan cheeses and zesty Duke's mayonnaise (a must in the South!) within a buttery pie crust.

4 SHE-CRAB SOUP

This rich, creamy, pale orange delicacy is a bisque-like soup made with the sweet meat of female blue crabs (plentiful in South Carolina's Lowcountry), milk and heavy cream, crab roe (eggs), dry sherry, lemon zest and spices.

5 BOILED PEANUTS

Often called "goobers" or "goober peas," the official state snack is a satisfying, high-protein nosh. Stop at roadside stands, festivals and markets for this salty go-to that consists of raw, in-shell peanuts boiled in salted water—and sometimes flavored with seasoning.

6 FROGMORE STEW (LOWCOUNTRY BOIL)

This Lowcountry tradition that originated from the Frogmore fishing community on St. Helena Island is a no-fuss, one-pot dish perfect for large group gatherings. Simmer fresh corn on the cob, new potatoes, sausage and shrimp in a mixture of beer, water and seasonings, and dinner is ready.

7 HOPPIN' JOHN

A traditional Gullah dish also known as Carolina peas and rice, this flavorful blend of field peas, ham, chopped onion and rice is often served on New Year's Day to bring good luck—but it can be enjoyed year-round.

8 SHRIMP & GRITS

It seems like every local restaurant has its own unique twist on this classic, taking freshly caught shrimp and stone-ground corn grits (often from Columbia-based Adluh Flour Mills) and adding everything from Andouille sausage to fried okra.

MAKE THEM AT HOME Make these Southern classics in your own kitchen with recipes shared from South Carolina chefs. Scan the QR code to see the recipes.

CAROLINA FOOD TOURS

EVERYONE HAS THEIR FAVORITE BETWEEN THESE TWO ICONIC SOUTHERN STAPLES. CAN'T PICK A SIDE? YOU DON'T HAVE TO—JUST ORDER THEM BOTH.

Cornbread or Hush Puppies?

HAVE BOTH!

CORNBREAD

Fluffy yet dense, moist inside with a caramelized crust outside, freshly baked cornbread is an art of balanced juxtaposition—and it's the perfect companion for rich Southern dishes.

WHERE TO TRY IT

Stone House BBQ, Slater-Marietta

Pair your spread of barbecued meats with a classic version of cornbread served with butter.

Wade's Restaurant, Spartanburg

Try a flavorful take with cornbread dressing (think stuffing) served with savory gravy.

Town Hall Restaurant & Bar, Florence

Order the "bread service" for fresh cornbread served with honey butter.

FARM, Bluffton

Savor Chef Brandon Carter's brown-butter cornbread elevated with cane syrup and sea salt.

HUSH PUPPIES

Two-bite morsels of cornmeal batter deep-fried to a golden-brown crisp, these Southern delights are often served with some variation of sweet or savory spread or dipping sauce.

WHERE TO TRY IT

Henry's Restaurant & Bar, Columbia

Start with a small plate of hush puppies served with cinnamon honey butter dipping sauce.

Skull Creek Boathouse, Hilton Head Island

Sweet meets spicy at this waterfront eatery, with hush puppies paired with spiced honey butter.

Bistro 217, Pawleys Island

Chef Adam Kirby mixes Vidalia onion, cheddar cheese and jalapeño into his hush puppy batter.

Leon's Fine Poultry & Oyster Shop, Charleston

Pair an order of fried catfish with a starter of hush puppies slathered with honey butter.

STAY AND PLAY

AT LUXE GOLF RESORTS

South Carolina has hundreds of golf courses throughout the state (more than 350, actually), many of which have hosted legendary professional players and tournaments. Whether you're traveling with friends or the whole family, stay at a plush golf resort packed with amenities to please everyone. From crystalline swimming pools and beach concierge services to high-end shopping and even kids' activities, these are the places that make vacations a breeze.

At Wild Dunes Resort just outside of Charleston, golfers can choose from the Harbor Course along the Intracoastal Waterway or the oceanfront Links Course—both designed by Tom Fazio. And then there's all the other activities: fitness classes, a tennis center, treatments at the spa and salon, bike rentals and numerous pools—from family friendly to adults only.

Revel in true Southern hospitality at The Sanctuary at Kiawah

Island Golf Resort, beloved for its lavish amenities. When you're not teeing off on the five championship golf courses, unwind in the Forbes Four-Star spa, play on the Har-Tru clay tennis courts, rent a beach cruiser to explore the island or lounge by one of the many swimming pools.

In Bluffton, Montage Palmetto Bluff is situated along the serene May River, offering a Lowcountry escape that feels like a world away. When you're not playing the 18-hole Jack Nicklaus Signature Golf Course, cast a fishing line in the salt marsh flats, explore the nature preserve via kayak or test your aim on the sporting clay course.

With its pristine beaches, maritime forests and luxurious resorts touting world-class golf courses overlooking the Atlantic Ocean, Hilton Head Island is a golfer's paradise. At Palmetto Dunes Oceanfront Resort, test your mettle on three challenging courses punctuated by

STORIED LIVE MUSIC VENUES

BY EVA MOORE

IF YOU WANT TO CATCH SOME GOOD VIBES

Try These: A Lowcountry mainstay, The Windjammer in Isle of Palms offers a beachfront setting and a jam-packed calendar of live music. Take a break from the tunes to play—or watch—some beach volleyball. Fun fact: Hootie & The Blowfish lead Darius Rucker has played here numerous times over the years.

Yes, the Icehouse Amphitheater is aptly named: It's on the site of a former ice warehouse. The town of Lexington has renovated its downtown area to include this destination outdoor stage, which draws local and regional bands.

With a stage that juts out over the Intracoastal Waterway, plus an on-site brewery and a stacked calendar of live music, the Landing at the Boathouse in Myrtle Beach is a guaranteed good time. Every Friday is “Free Show Friday” and it’s just what the name says.

IF YOU WANT TO SIT BACK AND ENJOY THE SHOW

Try These: Visit Circular Congregational Church to experience The Sound of Charleston, a live concert spanning music from throughout Charleston’s history, including gospel, Civil War-era songs, jazz and more.

In addition to a long-running, star-studded variety show, The Carolina Opry Theater in Myrtle Beach hosts popular tribute bands and concerts by a variety of original country, soul and rock acts. In the winter, check out the beloved Carolina Opry Christmas Special.

How about a concert in a historic small-town opera house? Built in the early 20th century to feature

South Carolina is alive with music. From small clubs to big arenas, there’s a venue just right for you, no matter what kind of experience you seek.

touring vaudeville acts, the Abbeville Opera House now offers a full calendar of live original bands, tribute acts, comedy and musical productions.

IF YOU WANT TO HIT UP A BIG CONCERT

Try These: To tennis fans, Credit One Stadium in Charleston is better known as a world-class tennis facility. In the off season, this 10,200-seat concert venue hosts big-name pop, rock, country and jam rock acts.

Greenville's premier concert hall hosts everything from symphonies to reggae, Broadway to rock. The Peace Center is right on the Reedy River in Greenville's thriving downtown.

Spartanburg's nickname is Sparkle City—and the lights sparkle at the Spartanburg Memorial Auditorium, a downtown concert hall that opened in 1951. It hosts a year-round calendar of live music.

Built in 1930 and beautifully renovated in 2010, Columbia's publicly run Township Auditorium is a mid-sized concert space that attracts a variety of music, comedy and theater acts. In earlier years, it hosted musicians from Duke Ellington to Elvis Presley.

IF YOU WANT TO TAKE IN THE LATEST COOL BAND

Try These: From reggae to electronic dance music to hip-hop, a diverse array of touring acts finds a home in Columbia at venues such as The Senate and the recently reopened New Brookland Tavern at its new, larger location.

Beloved by South Carolina musicians, Awendaw Green features a historic barn and lovely outdoor space hosting frequent concerts and jam sessions. It's located in the small fishing town of Awendaw, up the coast from Charleston.

IF YOU WANT TO HEAR SOME LAID-BACK OUTDOOR TUNES

Try These: Enjoy bluegrass in breathtaking surroundings at the Civilian Conservation Corps-built Gaines Lodge in Pickens County's Table Rock State Park. You can even bring your own mandolin and join the free monthly jams.

Relax on the lawn of the picture-perfect Mt. Pleasant Town Centre shopping area while you enjoy free outdoor concerts at Live Under the Oaks each spring and fall.

Each fall, Greenville's Paris Mountain State Park hosts Music in the Woods, a free outdoor afternoon concert series. The stage and audio are solar-powered, and everyone is welcome.

MASON JAR MAGIC

Bellevs Country
Store, Spartanburg

Belle's Bistro at Chattooga Belle Farm, Long Creek

IF YOU BELIEVE THE BEST SOUVENIRS ARE EDIBLE, SEEK OUT ROADSIDE STANDS AND FARM MARKETS STATEWIDE, WHERE GLASS JARS SPARKLE IN THE SUN. WHAT'S INSIDE IS A TREASURE OF TASTES—AND A DELICIOUS REMINDER OF LOCAL FOODWAYS.

At Abbott Farms in Cowpens, where the staff knows peaches (and is known to share free samples), Carolina peach jam beams the color of sunrise. From McLeod Farms Roadside Market in McBee, sweet potato pecan butter shines as earthy-sweet, warmly spiced and imminently spreadable. Inside the kitchen of Old McCaskill's Farm in Rembert, local fruits from blackberries to pears are canned, beckoning for bakers to transform them into pies and cobblers. For the sweetest simplicity, visit McDowell Farms in Chesnee, where honey is harvested seasonally in small batches alongside strawberries.

Not every jarred treat is sweet, mind you. Across South Carolina shelves, you'll discover all manner of pickled and peppered produce. At Bellevs Country Store in Spartanburg, look for chow chow, a Southern-staple veggie relish homemade locally and canned on-site. At Mike's Produce of Newberry, try pickled okra, perfect for a Bloody Mary bar. At Chattooga Belle Farm in Long Creek, opt for apple salsa, a mélange of piquant peppers and the farm's apple varieties. (Or try some farm-made spreads with a charcuterie and cheese plate from the on-site Belle's Bistro.)

Ultimately, the magic is more than what's in the jar. At these stands and markets—mostly family operations, some more than a century old—you might pick your own fruit or gaze out over the farms and orchards that inspired your souvenir. And each crystalline jar preserves the experience along with the bounty.

A Perfect Day

IN SOUTH CAROLINA STATE PARKS

BY GWEN DAVENPORT

WHEN YOU WANT A HISTORY LESSON

Try This: Drive to Summerville to explore Colonial Dorchester State Historic Site. The trading town of Dorchester along the Ashley River flourished until the beginning of the Revolutionary War, when it was abandoned. Today, only a few structures remain. Explore the tabby fort, the old brick bell tower and historical cemetery. Walk the interpretive trail with exhibits that explain the history of the village, and if you're lucky, watch a live archaeological dig.

WHEN YOU WANT TO GET ON THE WATER

Try This: Head out to Dreher Island State Park in Prosperity with a boat in tow to enjoy sprawling Lake Murray. Whether you decide to fish, tube, swim or simply cruise, there are plenty of water activities for the entire family.

WHEN YOU WANT TO SEE FALL COLORS

Try This: As the weather cools and leaves turn, grab your picnic basket and head out for the day at Caesars Head State Park in Cleveland. Venture to the overlook with your binoculars and camera for sweeping views of the Blue Ridge Mountains bathed in color. Take the short—but interesting—path through the Devils Kitchen, and if you're feeling ambitious, hike to the Raven Cliff Falls overlook for more autumn splendor and a waterfall view.

WHEN YOU WANT WATERFALLS

Try This: For an easy half-mile hike with some eye candy at the end, the 60-foot Station Cove Falls, accessible from Oconee State Historic Site in Walhalla, is the ticket. Cool off in the falls before enjoying a picnic lunch near the park's main office. As a bonus, explore the historical structures of this once military compound and trading post.

WHEN YOU WANT LAKEFRONT CAMPING

Try This: With over 170 campsites, most of which are lakefront, Hamilton Branch State Park in Plum Branch won't disappoint. Pack up the camper for the weekend, fish just feet from your campsite and cool off in Lake Thurmond on your float.

VISIT MYRTLE BEACH

WHEN YOU WANT A BEACH DAY

Try This: Wake up early, pack a lunch and your beach bag, and make your way to Huntington Beach State Park in Murrells Inlet for some early-morning wildlife watching on the causeway. More than 300 species of birds have been spotted within the park, plus nesting loggerhead sea turtles, alligators and minks. Enjoy a leisurely day relaxing and playing on the beach, and then treat yourself with a scoop of locally made ice cream at Spoonbill's.

WHEN YOU WANT AN EPIC PADDLE

Try This: Two state parks flank the popular 23-mile Edisto River Canoe & Kayak Trail. Put in early at Colleton State Park for a 6- to 8-hour paddle along the Edisto River, the longest free-flowing blackwater river in North America. Pack a lunch to enjoy on one of the sandbars, and experience beautiful Lowcountry scenery along the way. As you arrive at Givhans Ferry State Park, you'll see the impressive limestone bluffs that signal the end of your journey. Reserve a cabin or campsite to spend the night.

Deville Fork State Park, Salem

Deville Fork State Park offers the only public access to the clear, sparkling waters of undeveloped Lake Jocassee. Boat, paddle, explore waterfalls, camp or stay in one of the modern villas at this popular park.

Lake Hartwell State Park, Fair Play

Access Lake Hartwell, best known for its fishing, from the boat ramp at Lake Hartwell State Park. The park is also popular with campers, offering RV and tent sites, as well as camper cabins.

Keowee-Toxaway State Park, Sunset

Hike, camp, paddle or relax the day away along the picturesque shoreline of Lake Keowee. Feeling adventurous? Try the new zipline at the park that takes you over the lake for awesome views.

Sadlers Creek State Park, Anderson

Sadlers Creek State Park is best-known for its wildlife and is a favorite picnicking and camping spot along the shores of Lake Hartwell.

THE SOUTHERN CAMPAIGN

THE TURNING POINT OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

BY DEVYN WHITMIRE

Revolutionary War Days, Camden

Cowpens National Battlefield, Gaffney

Raging from 1775 to 1783, the American Revolutionary War was a period of scrappy rebellion—an uprising of the original 13 colonies and its hardy residents against the British crown—which ultimately led to the formation of the United States of America. Many notable battles took place in the northern colonies, but it was the conflicts in the Carolinas, fought in its swamps and marshes, its fields and mountains, that secured America’s victory.

With the war in the north at a stalemate, and rich agricultural resources and rumors of Loyalists (colonists still loyal to the crown) awaiting them, the British forces set their sights on the Southern colonies. The Southern Campaign saw the British capture of integral port cities in Savannah and then Charleston, up along the coast to Georgetown.

Rickie Good, museum curator and director of the Revolutionary War Center in Camden, says that this signifies when Camden became a “keystone” in the battle for the South.

“Camden itself—the city, the location of the town—is on a major trading route,” she explains. “If you look at the map of outposts that the British set up in South Carolina ... there’s an arc across the state, and Camden is in the center.”

Having already captured the major port cities, the British found Camden’s centralized location crucial for running supplies and keeping the war alive. Contrastingly, the Patriots saw the retaking of Camden as a catalyst of sorts to take back Charleston and eventually to eradicate the British from South Carolina.

What makes this time in history even more fascinating is the resilience that characterized the many South Carolinians,

BRINGING HISTORY TO LIFE

With 35 years of service in the Marine Corps and years curating for museums, it seems fated that Kim Stacy happened upon a reenactment in Greenfield

American Revolution. Passion for learning is at the heart of every project that Stacy approaches, both for furthering his own and igniting the learning of others. Now residing in Camden, Stacy spends his days researching, lecturing, portraying an 84th Highlander (among others) and putting on creative programs in hopes that by planting these seeds of learning, he will inspire the next generation of historians to pass on the flag.

a melting pot of people from all backgrounds and walks of life, who played a part in it.

To Good, these people and their stories are what should motivate visitors and locals to prioritize exploring this chapter of American history in South Carolina.

With so many stories—more than 200 battles and skirmishes worth—within reach, delving into Revolutionary War history in the Palmetto State might seem overwhelming. When asked for specific sites and recommendations, Good herself quips, “It would be easier to tell you where not to go!”

A great place to start is the Revolutionary War Center in Camden, which tells the story of the Southern Campaign and the Battle of Musgrove Mill State Historic Site, which depicts another significant Patriot win.

American Revolutionary War fortifications in South Carolina, if not the country, and the national park sites of Cowpens and Kings Mountain are must-sees for the impact their resulting victories had on the outcome of the entire war. Many sites also offer reenactments, like Historic Camden’s Revolutionary War Days.

While visiting the Palmetto State, walk the paths that were once trekked by Patriot and Loyalist soldiers. Visit the settlements of the men, women and children who lived this immortal period of American history. ILLUMINATING AN INCLUSIVE HISTORY

AT THESE SOUTH CAROLINA PLANTATIONS AND HISTORIC SITES, LEARN OF THE LIVES AND LEGACIES OF ENSLAVED AFRICANS THROUGH TOURS, EXHIBITS AND INTERPRETIVE PROGRAMMING.

No story about the South's rise to wealth can be told without the story of enslaved Africans brought to its shores. Their skills, knowledge and strength powered the South's economic engine, and at one time, the Lowcountry was one of the wealthiest regions in the world due to its enslaved workforce. As North America's largest port of entry for the Transatlantic Slave Trade, an estimated 40% of all enslaved Africans trafficked to the continent arrived through the Charleston harbor.

Although a cornerstone of prosperity in the colonies and the fledgling country, the contributions of African Americans were largely overlooked for centuries. Many plantation sites focused primarily on the grandiose architecture and the history of the white families. However, an ever-growing list of historic properties are telling a more complete story of the past.

Dating to 1670, Charles Towne Landing State Historic Site is South Carolina's first permanent English settlement site, where enslaved Africans arrived with European colonists who had previously established profitable sugar cane plantations in Barbados. The efforts of these enslaved people not only strengthened the area's economic vitality but also contributed to its defense against potential attackers. The site's visitor center museum chronicles this history.

The property now known as Boone Hall Plantation & Gardens in Mount Pleasant was founded in 1681 and became a major producer of cash crops such as rice, indigo and cotton. By the end of the 19th century, it was the leading supplier of U.S. pecans, due to its enslaved workforce. Learn about these people—their culture, traditions and stories—during the live presentation of Exploring The Gullah Culture, shared by true descendants of the Gullah Geechee people of the Lowcountry and Sea Islands. Then, explore the newly renovated Cotton Gin House, originally built in the 1850s for processing cotton, which today features a visitor center, gift shop and museum.

The 37-acre McLeod Plantation Historic Site in Charleston defines itself as a Gullah Geechee park for giving equal attention to the lives of the Europeans who established the cotton plantation and the lives of the enslaved who built and operated it. Through its tours, exhibits and interpretive programming, visitors also gain insight into the role of the free Black Massachusetts 55th Volunteer Infantry, the Freedmen’s Bureau when stationed at McLeod, and the emergence of the vibrant Gullah culture so prominent throughout the Lowcountry.

In addition to historic slave dwellings, Magnolia Plantation & Gardens in Charleston offers programming that defines the contributions of enslaved Africans who built and operated the rice plantation and, subsequently, its expansive gardens.

Since 1991, Middleton Place in Charleston has featured a permanent exhibit called Beyond the Fields, displayed at Eliza’s House, a Reconstruction-era African American freedman’s dwelling. The focal point is a panel with the names of more than 2,800 men, women and children who were enslaved by the Middleton family. In addition, Middleton Place offers living history demonstrations of blacksmithing, pottery making and other skills of enslaved workers.

After extensive research with descendant families like the Henleys, Goodwins and Wigfalls, the Redcliffe Plantation State Historic Site in Beech Island interprets the lives and work of enslaved Africans who built wealth for one of South Carolina’s governors. The park’s interpretive programming discusses their roles from slavery, through sharecropping to eventually paid employment.

While these are just a few of the important African American interpretive sites in South Carolina, all of these historic destinations inspire discussion and reflection, and help visitors more fully appreciate the complex and often challenging history that led to the success of the American South.

PRESERVING GULLAH GEECHEE HERITAGE

For hundreds of years, the Gullah Geechee people have lived on the coast of South Carolina. The descendants of enslaved Africans, this group has preserved much of its rich culture, language, food history and traditions. Here are five ways to experience it for yourself.

 The Gullah Museum of Hilton Head Island maintains Gullah traditions, customs, stories, songs and structures.

 On Daufuskie Island, take the three-hour Gullah Tour narrated by sixth-generation native Sallie Ann Robinson to learn about her ancestors.

 Peruse authentic Gullah handicrafts such as heirloom-quality sweetgrass baskets at Charleston City Market, established in 1807.

 Savor Lowcountry specialties such as crab rice, oxtail and shark steak at the family-owned Hannibal’s Kitchen in Charleston.

 Listen to acapella group Ann Caldwell and the Magnolia Singers perform Gullah poetry, spirituals and storytelling.

MUST-SEE MUSEUMS

The long-awaited International African American Museum (IAAM) in Charleston is open to the public, showcasing a poignant collection of exhibits and artifacts that immortalize a complex history of trauma and triumph. The on-site African Ancestors Memorial Garden notes the significance of Gadsden's Wharf, where an estimated 40% of enslaved Africans entered the country. Along with the permanent collection, see the special exhibit Follow the North Star, on display May 23–Nov. 3, 2024.

With a 4D theater, digital dome planetarium and observatory, plus extensive galleries with permanent and rotating exhibits, the South Carolina State Museum in Columbia brings science, technology, culture and history to life.

Also in Columbia, the South Carolina Military Museum chronicles centuries of conflicts, from the founding of Charleston to modern-day deployments. See weapons that date to the 1600s, plus tanks, artillery and personal equipment.

At Patriots Point Naval & Maritime Museum in Mount Pleasant, board an authentic WWII aircraft carrier—the USS Yorktown—and explore the immersive Vietnam Experience Exhibit, which spans more than 2 acres and comes to life in 3D through holograms and a war camp setup. Before leaving, pay your respects to soldiers who made the ultimate sacrifice when you explore the interactive exhibits at the on-site Medal of Honor Museum.

Brian Latimer

Professional Bass Fisherman

Living in a small town just outside Anderson, Brian Latimer has seemingly endless access to incredible fishing—such as lakes Hartwell, Keowee and Greenwood, among others. “When I think about fishing, it’s almost always through the lens of competition,” he says. “You’re learning every time you go fishing. You learn a little more about your opponent. How are you going to apply this in the future?” Since his childhood, the Anderson area has become a magnet to other anglers and has become the host of high-profile tournaments, such as the Bassmaster Classic.

Robin Waites

Executive Director of Historic Columbia

Born and raised in Columbia, Robin Waites is deeply invested in the city’s historic properties and the personal narratives of early residents. One of her favorites is the story of Celia Mann, the matriarch of a prominent African American family that settled in Columbia in the early 1840s. “She was able to navigate this very challenging social structure with what appears to have been a lot of grace but also a lot of might,” says Waites. The history of this entrepreneurial family—and of the rise of Columbia’s Black community—is preserved at the Mann-Simons Site.

Nat Bradford

Farmer and Landscape Architect

A distant descendant of Nathaniel Bradford, who first farmed the highly prized Bradford watermelon in South Carolina, farmer Nat Bradford is carrying on the family legacy, bringing back the near-extinct Bradford watermelon from obscurity and into the hands of local chefs, gardeners and foodies. “The Bradford watermelon has a really thick, tender rind—which is great for pickling or preserves—and then the flesh is super tender,” explains Bradford. “We’re trying to preserve the end result (the quality, flavor, texture) of the crops that we grow, but bring some modernization to the process.”

Jamison Mady Kerr

Director for ArtFields

A community arts nonprofit by Lake City Creative Alliance, ArtFields is perhaps best known for its annual flagship event: an 11-day art festival that transforms this small town into a robust gallery of works created by local artists. But Jamison Mady Kerr’s vision is to make Lake City a year-round art town, complete with studios, residency programs, workshops and classes. She aims to foster an environment “where there are artists living and working, certainly, but where more and more people are able to find their own creativity and use that for good.”

THE GREENWOOD TOPIARIES

BY DEVYN WHITMIRE

Whimsical, herbaceous, lively. You'll discover the embodiment of these descriptors proudly displayed along the streets of Greenwood to mark the arrival of its signature event, the annual South Carolina Festival of Flowers.

This event showcases more than 50 topiaries (trees and shrubs that are expertly clipped and shaped), drawing people from all over to view the whimsical characters and scenes every spring and summer.

From a mermaid and a Jeep to local sports mascots and a zoo of creatively assembled creatures, each topiary is crafted and cared for all year. The living sculptures debut just before the main festival weekend each June, but visitors and locals are invited to admire them all season long.

SOUTH CAROLINA FESTIVAL OF FLOWERS

COFFEE SHOPS CAN CREATE A WINDOW INTO LOCAL COMMUNITY AND CRAFT, ESPECIALLY AT THESE GOURMET CAFES AND SMALL-BATCH ROASTERS ACROSS SOUTH CAROLINA.

SOUTH CAROLINA COFFEE CULTURE

In Greenville, start your day at Unlocked Coffee Roasters. This minority-owned roastery and cafe specializes in single-origin coffee, including beans from the owners' native country of Colombia. Ask the barista for a recommendation or order a flight to savor a variety.

At Little River Roasting Co. in Spartanburg, ethical sourcing means organic, fair trade and farmer friendly. For you, it means small-batch roasts, the chance to talk coffee with fellow aficionados and an artisanal breakfast and lunch menu. The staff often features a roast of the week, so inquire before you order.

The fair-trade ethos carries over to Genesis Hub in Newberry. Select from fair trade coffees, teas and drinks featuring ingredients made in-house. Depending on the seasonal menu, that might include The Neapolitan, layering house-made strawberry syrup with fair trade espresso and cold foam.

In fact, you'll find from-scratch syrups on many coffee shop menus statewide. At Florence's Bean Bar, take your pick of house-made syrups from vanilla to caramel. Like the coffee, they're 100% organic.

Unlocked Coffee Roasters, Greenville

UNLOCKED COFFEE ROASTERS

Piecewise Coffee Co. in Cayce keeps the flavor elevated with specialty coffees and teas infused with simple syrup, such as the honeysuckle latte.

Similarly, Rock Hill Coffee Roasters in Rock Hill serves up seasonal creations like the sage caramel latte. Ask about taking home a bag of their whiskey barrel-aged coffee beans.

And if you're looking for a festive take on your morning cup, Cuppa Manna is known for creating holiday specials (think peppermint-spiked warmers in winter). This historic Summerville staple also serves nitro cold brews, bubble teas and more.

Ice Cream Delights

When you dream of ice cream, do you envision a sun-kissed beach day? In South Carolina, ice cream conjures even more, including seasonal flavors and a nod to the State Beverage (check out our sidebar for more details). Dip into ice cream shops statewide for the latest scoop.

At Sweet Cream Company in Columbia, the vibe is small-batch and seasonal, curating an ever-changing menu. Embrace the elements of surprise and creativity when you go: Anything from white chocolate lavender to sesame seed honey pistachio could be on the menu.

Dillard's Ice Cream Parlor in Greer varies its offerings—but opt for a locally inspired flavor when available. Imagine crave-able Charleston sea-salt caramel or South Carolina Pothole: chocolate ice cream studded with chocolate chunks and ribboned with fudge.

In North Myrtle Beach, break from the shore to find the Original Painter's Homemade Ice Cream. Fans love this classic for preserving Mr. and Mrs. Painter's recipes, and flavors from banana pudding to bubblegum.

Mama Rae's Ice Cream Shoppe in Pendleton welcomes sweet-seekers with rotating flavors such as Oatmeal Cookie Craving and Better Brownie Batter. See what's offered during your visit, then enjoy your selection in the cheery outdoor seating nook.

Pawleys Island is home to Gilbert's Ice Cream, where handcrafted ice cream builds a delicious base for frozen treats. When available, indulge in varieties such as bourbon butter pecan, or lean into local flavors with seasonal exclusives like peach berry cobbler; house-made cobbler with South Carolina blackberry swirls.

At Huntington Beach State Park in Murrells Inlet, cap your birdwatching adventure with a visit to Spoonbill's Ice Cream near the park's South Beach Access. Cool off with a cup, cone or ICEE.

SIP THE STATE BEVERAGE

Did you know? Milk holds the distinction thanks to the abundance of dairy farmers—and their impact—across South Carolina. For visitors, this promises hands-on, milk-mustache-making fun. At Hickory Hill Milk in Edgefield, pet calves, ogle tractors and sip milk on spring and fall tours. In Pelzer, hop on the Happy Cow Creamery trolley from spring through fall. You'll view paddocks and the milking parlor before sampling milk and ice cream (and maybe take some home from the farm store). Reservations are required for all farm tours.

COASTAL FAMILY TRADITIONS

SOUTH CAROLINA IS THE SETTING OF FAMILY MEMORIES

From getaways on the beach to annual concerts, South Carolina brings back friends and families to its relaxed, idyllic settings year after year. Make your own tradition in the Palmetto State.

"My mother began our week at Edisto almost 20 years ago. My brother and I have continued the tradition. My two sons with their families join us. It's a week of eating, relaxing, laughing and catching up with each other. Traditions are important in this hectic world. I love slowing down for a week."

— Susan Wise Turner

"Kiawah Island is a destination that we've returned to again and again. Our first visit was when we were pregnant with our first daughter (who is taking the New York State Bar Exam tomorrow) and our next visit will be in 2024! Kids 2 and 3 are graduating from college and they chose Kiawah to be their destinations."

— Kathy Schoemick

"We visit Hilton Head Island every year! Over the last couple years we have transitioned to staying on the Sea Pines (Harbour Town) part of the island because we love being able to walk or bike to everything: dinner, shops, entertainment, activities, etc. Our yearly tradition is to see Gregg Russell sing under the old Liberty Oak tree. Plus the sunsets in Harbour Town are absolutely amazing!"

— Grace Scott

"For the past eight years, our family from upstate New York drives 16 hours and stays for two weeks on Folly [Beach], so our two sons on the [Autism] spectrum could participate in Surfers Healing."

— Robert Franz

"[In] Fripp Island, South Carolina celebrating our 50th wedding anniversary. We've been vacationing at Fripp for 29 years. Our favorite spot to spend vacation with our children and grandchildren."

STUNNING SOUTH CAROLINA EVENT SPACES

BY KATIE MCELVEEN

VISIT GREENVILLE/VAN ZEPPELIN AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHY

NORTH CORNER HAVEN

WHETHER YOU WANT TO GATHER YOUR GROUP IN THE CITY OR THE COUNTRY, NEXT TO THE WATER OR OVERLOOKING THE MOUNTAINS, YOU'LL FIND JUST THE RIGHT PLACE IN SOUTH CAROLINA TO HOST YOUR WEDDING, FAMILY REUNION OR SPECIAL CELEBRATION.

MOUNTAINS

There's a reason Fred W. Symmes Chapel in Cleveland is often referred to as Pretty Place: Set atop 3,200-foot-tall Stone Mountain, the rustic outdoor sanctuary offers a stunning mountain backdrop for wedding and commitment ceremonies.

Family reunions at Gaines Lodge in Pickens' Table Rock State Park don't have to end when the sun goes down: more than a dozen well-appointed rental cabins are located within walking distance of the historic structure.

At Arabella Farm in Sunset, chandeliers and an elegantly raftered ceiling elevate the rustic barn into a stylish space; winding pathways lead through the bright meadows and sun-dappled forest to gorgeous outdoor ceremony sites scattered about the landscape.

MIDLANDS

Events at North Corner Haven, near Lancaster, can sprawl over 5 acres of terraced lawn, formal gardens and orchards; indoor venues include a tin wellhouse, a classic (but fully climate-controlled) barn and farmhouse.

Located on a working Christmas tree farm, The Pines at Matthews Tree Farm in Batesburg-Leesville is known for its scenic wooded setting and rustic barn venue.

And at the historic Hampton-Preston Mansion in downtown Columbia, you'll find centuries-old magnolias, gurgling fountains, banks of greenery and a pretty gazebo on the grounds.

COAST

Set on the banks of the Ashley River near Charleston, Charles Towne Landing State Historic Site is perhaps best known for its remarkable canopy of live oaks that ends at a perfect patch of green lawn. Two indoor sites, one modern, one historic, round out the offerings.

In Ridgeville, Natural Gathering Grounds is a woody retreat with its own riverside beach and dock.

▲ Fall

South Carolina is home to the gorgeous southernmost section of the Blue Ridge Mountains, which you can see from the Cherokee Foothills Scenic Highway—and each fall, the hills are alive with vibrant red, orange and yellow foliage. A romantic fall getaway wouldn't be complete without some agritourism, whether it's picking apples at Bryson's Apple Orchard in Mountain Rest (which apple variety is your favorite?), or visiting Clinton Sease Farm in Lexington, where you can pick out the perfect pumpkin and take a trip through the famous corn maze.

FROM WINTER BEACHCOMBING WALKS TO SUMMER NIGHTS ON THE PORCH SWING, SOUTH CAROLINA IS A ROMANTIC PLACE TO VISIT YEAR-ROUND. FIND YOUR PERFECT GETAWAY TODAY.

Newberry Opera House, Newberry

▲ Winter

At Magnolia Plantation & Gardens in Charleston, camellias bloom each winter on the Spanish moss-draped grounds, a great place for an afternoon ramble. In Newberry, nestle into a comfy seat at the historic Newberry Opera House to catch some live music. Or, strap on some skates and hit the ice at downtown Greenville's Ice on Main.

Ice on Main, Greenville

If you're not a good enough skater to wow your partner, consider this an opportunity to hold hands as you get comfortable on the ice.

Brookgreen Gardens,
Murrells Inlet

Spring

Experience springtime in the Lowcountry with a leisurely bicycle ride along the Edisto Island Bike Path, which winds through the center of this low-key beach community. (Bike rentals are available from several local businesses.) If you're more the walking type, visit the expansive outdoor art collection and green spaces of Brookgreen Gardens in Murrells Inlet, enjoying the American figurative sculptures, manicured grounds and even a small zoo. As for the animal lovers among you, is there anything so Instagram-worthy as a horseback ride along the beach with your sweetie? Based in Aynor, Grand Strand Horseback Riding offers guided rides even for beginners.

Cypress Gardens, Moncks Corner

Summer

The ultimate romantic movie, The Notebook, was filmed at Cypress Gardens in Moncks Corner. Rent a boat and paddle through the atmospheric swamp—think cypress trees and drapery Spanish moss. When the summer heats up, pack a picnic lunch (or pick one up from Swamp Rabbit Grocery and Café) and head to downtown Greenville's Falls Park to watch the Reedy River spill over rocks. When you're done eating, amble across the spectacular 345-foot pedestrian bridge. Another great Upstate-area park is the 12-acre Greer City Park, which hosts free live music each summer during Tunes in the Park. Book a plush suite at Clevedale Historic Inn and Gardens in Spartanburg for the ultimate romantic retreat.

SOLO SIGHTSEEING

You don't have to be part of a couple to have a wonderful time in South Carolina. Solo visitors will find friendly people and beautiful sights throughout the state.

Check out the Georgetown Food Tour hosted by Carolina Food Tours, visiting three or four restaurants along the lovely Harborwalk while learning about Georgetown's history, architecture and Lowcountry cuisine.

With rotating special exhibitions and a carefully curated permanent collection organized by theme, the Columbia Museum of Art is an essential stop. Take an adult art class (leather tooling, anyone?) or experience one of the many gallery tours offered by this beloved institution.

One of South Carolina's longest-running breweries, Rockers Brewing Co. is a Spartanburg hot spot. The downtown brewpub is a cozy place to take in live music and just-brewed beers.

If you're an ocean lover, spot some marine life and get a different view of the Grand Strand's famous white beaches on the popular Sea Thunder Dolphin Cruise. These 2.5-hour tours are a fun, affordable way to get out on the water.

SOUTHERN HERITAGE & Cocktails

BY KATIE MCELVEEN

From backwoods moonshine to modern-day distillates harnessing the flavors of heritage crops, South Carolina's spirits—and the craft cocktails they create—have a storied past.

American vintners have made wine from America's native grape, the muscadine, for hundreds of years; after the Civil War, formerly enslaved Africans gathered the sweet clusters, made wine and sold it throughout the state. Today, Long Creek's Chattooga Belle Farm expands that longstanding tradition by transforming their annual crop into high-octane moonshine, aged brandy and even vodka.

Utilizing a near-extinct corn variety is just part of the interesting backstory of High Wire Distillery in Charleston. For their flavorful Jimmy Red Bourbon, the distillers use Jimmy Red corn, a blood-red heirloom variety once cherished by bootleggers and brought back from oblivion by South Carolina farmer and seed-saver Ted Chewning. Meanwhile, Palmetto Distillery in Anderson uses an old family recipe to craft its corn- and sugar cane-based moonshines.

MOCKTAILS ON THE MENU

Teetotalers rejoice: South Carolina's bartenders have mixed up an array of sophisticated, sans-alcohol cocktails that go well beyond club soda with lime. On Sullivan's Island, The Longboard took its cues from the tropics to create drinks like the pineapple-based You Have No Proof. The Gin Joint in Charleston might be known for gin-based creations, but its ABV-free drinks are equally impressive. Try the European Outlaw, which gets its smoky notes from Lapsang Souchong tea. In Greenville, The Whale Craft Beer Collective offers nearly two dozen alcohol-free craft wines, beers, ciders and kombuchas.

Tea is South Carolina's Official Hospitality Beverage and it's easy to see why: Not only has it been grown in the state since the mid-1700s, but Summerville is considered the birthplace of sweet tea. In North Charleston, Firefly Distillery was the first to infuse vodka with locally grown black tea (and sugar) to create all-too-easy-to-drink sweet tea vodka.

10 YEARS OF SOUTH CAROLINA CHEF AMBASSADORS

For 10 years, South Carolina Chef Ambassadors have embraced local ingredients and culinary heritage. Visit the restaurants of 2023 Ambassadors for a taste of seasonal menus and specials.

At Indigenous Underground in Abbeville, Chef Erica McCier amplifies Southern flavors. With an emphasis on South Carolina ingredients, she fuses influences to create flavor punches in dishes like chicken wings dressed in Buffalo sauce and Creole seasoning, or smoked gouda agnolotti with roasted corn and poblano sauce.

Chef Rob Masone roots the experience at Kounter in Rock Hill in farm-to-table philosophy and local history. Reserve a seat at the lunch counter where Civil Rights Movement activists famously staged a sit-in, and savor Vermilion snapper tacos or Alderwood-smoked salmon with forest mushroom cream.

Step into 19th-century Paris inside Charleston's 39 Rue de Jean, where Chef Marcus Shell transforms his favorite local ingredients into brasserie-style delights. Enjoy a multitude of textures in the king tide kale salad with microgreens, or go for the crispy pork belly, complemented by savory roasted tomato jam and spicy peach honey.

BUDGET-FRIENDLY GOLF COURSES

BY PERRY BAKER

South Carolina might be best known for its prestigious golf courses, but you don't have to break the bank to play a round on these courses.

EDGEWATER GOLF CLUB, NEAR LANCASTER

Architect: Bruce Brodsky
At 7,103 yards from the back tees, the challenging track offers slick bent-grass greens that are elevated and protected by large bunkers. With no two fairways parallel, this track winds through a wooded landscape offering players a feeling of isolation.

HICKORY KNOB STATE RESORT PARK, MCCORMICK

Architect: Tom Jackson
With several holes running alongside scenic Lake Thurmond, golfers will experience expansive water views and a surprisingly hilly course that will challenge golfers of any skill level.

CHERAW STATE PARK, CHERAW

Architect: Tom Jackson
Cheraw State Park Golf Course winds around picturesque Lake Juniper. Strategic bunkering and elevated, undulating greens put some teeth in this relatively short—but thoroughly enjoyable—course.

WYBOO GOLF CLUB, MANNING

Architect: Tom Jackson
Play this true gem of a course nestled along Wyboo Creek that offers wide, inviting fairways and intimidating approach shots to well-protected, small greens. This course has been named a top public track along with many other accolades since opening in 1999.

AIKEN GOLF CLUB, AIKEN

Architects: John Inglis, I.W. Fowler, E.J. Egernton
Opening in 1912 with 11 holes and later expanded to 18 holes by John Inglis in 1915, Aiken Golf Club has a long history. The Women's Invitational Tournament brought storied names in golf such as Babe Zaharias, Patty Berg and Helen Detwiler to compete on a grand stage between 1936-38. The course became public in 1941 when ownership transferred to the City of Aiken.

Welcome Centers

With nine total South Carolina Welcome Centers throughout the state, travelers will find no shortage of Southern hospitality when they make their way through the Palmetto State.

HISTORIC CHARLESTON & RESORT ISLANDS

As one of the country's most beautifully preserved architectural treasures, the historic city of Charleston features cobblestone streets, pastel mansions with lacy wrought iron balconies, homes turned museums and grand hotels. Just outside downtown, award-winning golf courses overlook the Atlantic Ocean, stately plantations hold centuries of stories, and the laid-back sea islands beckon with sandy beaches and casual dock-and-dine eateries.

5 ways to tour

1 Gullah Geechee Tours

Discover Charleston's vibrant Gullah Geechee community with a historian-led tour. Choose from a variety of tour options and discover the rich history and culture of these descendants of enslaved people brought from West Africa's rice-growing region.

2 Historic Summerville Downtown Walking Tour

Embark on a self-guided walking tour through the streets of historic Summerville. Discover the town's well-preserved architecture, beautiful gardens and quaint shops.

3 Morris Island Lighthouse Tour with Charleston Outdoor Adventures

Hop aboard a guided boat tour and journey into the ocean waves. Marvel at the picturesque lighthouse and take in stunning views of the coastline.

4 Kayak Tour with Flipper Finders

Embark on a thrilling kayak tour around Folly Beach. Explore lush marshes, spot wildlife and learn about the coastal ecosystem from knowledgeable guides.

5 Brewery Tour at Holy City Brewing

Take a behind-the-scenes, free brewery tour to learn about the beer-making process, and then sample a variety of craft brews.

If These Trees Could Talk

Recognized as the #1 Plantation in the Charleston Area by USA TODAY 10BEST
In a time of soul searching and reflection Boone Hall remains committed to telling the full story

You see it. You feel it. Spanish moss grows on giant live oaks, swaying gently in the coastal breeze.

And if you listen closely, you might even hear the whispers of over 300 years of history, beauty, and grace. The Avenue of Oaks at Boone Hall Plantation transports you back in time to an era gone, but never forgotten.

The diversity of what is presented at this iconic venue has propelled Boone Hall to the forefront as one of the most famous plantations in the world and “a must see on any trip to Charleston,” according to NBC Daytime television.

Boone Hall is no stranger to Hollywood either. It was a production location for the famous TV miniseries North and South, The Notebook, American Idol, and others.

“Exploring The Gullah Culture”
True descendants of the Gullah people share this unique culture through one-of-a-kind live presentations that are educational, entertaining, and according to visitors, also very moving and spiritually uplifting.

INCLUDED WITH ADMISSION

- Entrance down the famous Avenue Of Oaks
- Exploring The Gullah Culture Live Presentation

Water Adventures

In warm-weather months, locals and visitors alike love tubing on the flowing Lower Saluda River. Walk up to the window at Palmetto Outdoor in West Columbia and rent a tube to find your own flow. Ride the rapids for the three-hour float, then hop on the shuttle back to your car.

Retreat to a world of giants in Congaree National Park, where towering “champion” trees (the largest known tree of a particular species) provide a shaded canopy over the blackwater Cedar Creek. Book a three-hour guided kayak tour with Carolina Outdoor Adventures, and keep an eye out for birds, wild boar and otters as you paddle.

Have a whole group? Make a day of it on Lake Murray, “the jewel of South Carolina,” with a captained pontoon boat rental offered by Pontoon Rentals & Tours in Lexington. Lounge on the deck to catch some sun, hop in the lake and, when you’re hungry, have the captain dock-and-dine at one of the lakefront restaurants.

Spirit of Lake Murray in Leesville also offers public and private cruises on Lake Murray. During summer months (July–August), don’t miss the Purple Martin Tour to ride to the Bomb Island area at sunset to see swarms of thousands of migratory swallows swirling through the evening sky.

This area is plentiful in water activities, so take your pick of fun in the sun.

REGION

LOWCOUNTRY & RESORT ISLANDS

The hectic pace of life seems to slow down when you head to the Lowcountry, where Spanish moss-draped oak trees and wild marshlands set the scene for relaxation. Here, fishing, sailing, kayaking, hunting and sunset watching are common pastimes. Bike along the beachfront trails and beneath the shade of subtropical maritime forests, tee off on iconic golf courses, fill up on Gullah-inspired soul food and stay in historic mansions turned into B&Bs.

Bluffton

Beach Ready

This region has no shortage of pristine, picturesque beaches. From popular spots offering a plethora of amenities to quiet oases amid sand dunes and beach grasses, there's a stretch of sand to suit your style.

Edisto Beach, Edisto Island

For rugged beaches with a natural feel, head to the southern tip of the island to experience an undeveloped beach area, or explore the beaches at Edisto Beach State Park for beachcombing.

Coligny Beach Park, Hilton Head Island

This oceanfront park comes loaded with comfort amenities: restrooms, changing rooms, outdoor showers, wheelchair-friendly matting down to the water, even free Wi-Fi.

Hunting Island State Park Beach, Hunting Island

Beach-goers looking to reel in a catch can borrow rods and reels from this park's Nature Center to try their luck surf fishing from the sand or fishing from the pier over Fripp Inlet.

Kid-Friendly Fun For All IN MYRTLE BEACH

The Myrtle Beach area is known for its dazzling family-friendly entertainment and attractions, but the best part is it's welcoming for all kinds of visitors. Families seeking an array of amenities and accommodations—from sensory-friendly experiences to ADA-accessible areas—can enjoy an array of fun and stress-free activities.

Ripley's Aquarium has partnered with Champion Autism Network to create a monthly sensory-friendly night. Stop by the event table to pick up a selfie scavenger hunt and noise-canceling headphones (upon request). Myrtle Beach Bowl also features a monthly "quiet" bowling event for visitors with sensory needs. Sky Zone trampoline park offers sensory hours for a quieter, toned-down experience, as well as the new Lil' Ninja area for toddlers to explore jumping and playing safely in an age-appropriate area. And Savannah's Playground is welcoming for all kinds of kid-friendly fun, with wheelchair-accessible components, adaptive chairs on the zipline and various areas for age-appropriate and creative play.

BREAKFAST IS SERVED

At Johnny D's Waffles and Benedicts in Myrtle Beach, South Carolina Chef Ambassador Jamie Daskalis whips up fluffy pancakes stuffed with fresh ingredients and piled with delightful toppings. You'll also find creative waffle flavors, French toast made with pound cake and over-the-top benedicts, such as crab cake benedict served with grits.

MYRTLE BEACH, ONLY BETTER.

Kingston Resorts, located along Myrtle Beach's beautiful and spacious Grand Strand, has been transformed with a multi-million dollar renovation. Including the Hilton and Embassy Suites, Kingston's legacy as a premier beach destination has been totally refreshed both inside and out. SERVING UP A SIDE OF HISTORY

When South Carolina Chef Ambassador Rob Masone set out to open his new eatery in the location of a former five-and-dime, he learned it was the site of a notable protest during the Civil Rights Movement, when several Black students from Friendship Junior College were denied service but refused to leave. Masone insisted on honoring the significance of the sit-in by incorporating it into his Rock Hill restaurant he fittingly named "Kounter." Today, patrons can opt to dine while sitting at the well-preserved, original counter in seats that bear the names of those nine activists who courageously stood their ground.

STORIES FROM THE Battleground

Aiken County Historical Museum, Aiken

This history museum chronicles the area's past, from early Native American residents to 1950s relics. Get a glimpse into the Revolutionary War in the exhibit that delves into the skirmish at Fort Galphin.

God's Acre Healing Springs, Blackville

The mystical healing powers of these freshwater springs gained popularity during the Revolutionary War, when legend has it that the waters helped wounded British soldiers make a full recovery. Today, people travel great distances to collect some of this "miraculous" water for themselves.

Living History Park, North Augusta

Feel like you've traveled back in time at this collection of recreated buildings, where you'll find a grist mill, mercantile, blacksmith forge, sweets shop and various log cabins. Visit during one of the special events to experience historical reenactors reliving the colonial era that led to the American Revolution.

Audubon's Silver Bluff Sanctuary, Jackson

A Native American trading post turned British fort, the Silver Bluff area saw Revolutionary War action. Today, this 3,400-acre woodland area along the Savannah River features scenic walking trails and incredible birding—bald eagles, barred owls and nuthatches can be spotted year-round.

Arts & Heritage Center of North Augusta, North Augusta

Learn about the area's key players in the Revolutionary War and Civil War with permanent and rotating exhibits at this hub of arts and history.

Twin Falls, Sunset

Waterfall chasers have more than enough choices of paths to travel in the Upcountry. Simply follow the sound to find some of our favorites.

Ramsey Creek Falls, Chau Ram County Park, Westminster

An easy hike in Oconee County's "Best-Kept Secret" leads to the 40-foot falls, which cascade over a handful of boulders before emptying into a pool below on their way to the nearby Chauga River.

Issaqueena Falls, Stumphouse Park, Walhalla

Framed on all sides by lush green forest, this 100-foot waterfall is named after the local Native American woman in a legendary (and historically disputed) love story—some renditions of which involve her leaping off the falls.

Wildcat Branch Falls, Mountain Bridge Wilderness Area, Cleveland

The lower falls are viewable right off the Cherokee Foothills Scenic Highway, but beware—the upper section is more of a waterslide than waterfalls and is quite slippery! We recommend enjoying the view from the bottom.

Twin Falls, Twin Falls Trail, Sunset

Often called the state's most spectacular waterfalls, two cascades on Reedy Cove Creek rush 75 feet over a steep granite drop-off, making this a sight you'll hear long before you see it—especially after rainfall.

Station Cove Falls, Oconee Station State Historic Site, Walhalla

Hike an easy 30 minutes along a cove forest trail blooming with wildflowers to this stepped waterfall formed by mountain headwaters—a spring and summer favorite of Upcountry locals and visitors.

◀ White-Tailed Deer

This medium-sized deer has a brown coat and signature white underside of the tail. In Anderson, look for them along the easy Pine Grove Trail in Sadlers Creek State Park.

▲ Spotted Salamander

These tiny creatures may be hard to spot, but look at Marietta's Jones Gap State Park in the Mountain Bridge Wilderness Area. The blueish-black crawlers tout bright yellow spots.

Loggerhead Sea Turtle ▶

With reddish-brown top shells, pale-yellow bottom shells and brown-and-yellow scutes (scales) on the head and flippers, these turtles come to Edisto Beach State Park on Edisto Island to lay eggs. See them during nesting season, May to October.

▲ Alligator

On the trails of Huntington Beach State Park in Murrells Inlet, watch for crossings of these massive reptiles, which feature armor-like skin, rounded snouts and mouths full of jagged teeth. Keep your distance!

◀ Brown Pelican

At Myrtle Beach State Park, keep an eye out for these large coastal birds with grayish-brown bodies, white necks, orange beaks and expandable neck pouches used to catch fish.
